KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Commanderies From all Over the Country Arriving at Boston.

BUSY SCENE AT HEADQUARTERS.

Pittsburg Will Probably Secure the Next Conclave—Candidates For the Grand Recordership—The Special Trains Coming In.

Boston, Aug. 26.—The busiest place in Boston is the headquarters of the triennial conclave committee of Knights Templar. Early in the morning the chief of each sub-committee was at his desk ready for the business of the day. The scene was decidedly suggestive of the headquarters of the commander-in-chief of any army that after weeks of preparation was about to be led into battle. Aides hurried in and out with reports and orders, keeping the heads of the departments continually on the qui-vive and the knights, clad in the picturesque regalia of the order, lent the martial touch necessary to complete the scene.

To the reception committee has fallen the brunt of the battle. Under their direction the streets are filled with marching men. At the railway station detachments from Boston, Demolay, St. Omar, DePayens, Joseph Warren and the other Boston commanderies are receiving the invading Templars and marching them off to their various headquarters.

The committee on transportation reports progress all along the line. The trains bearing the visiting commanderies are running closer to schedule time than was expected and there is little danger that any commandery will be tied up on a railroad siding while its fellows are marching in the grand parade.

Some of the Western trains are reported late, and the New England specials to-day were not all on time, but no serious delay is reported.

All the other committees have been pressed to their utmost capacity by the accumulation in the closing hours of preparation of the thousand and one details attending so stupendous a gathering, and the results achieved appear marvellous.

The city is rapidly filled up with strangers, the weather promises to be propitious and the indications all point to the most successful conclave in the history of the order. Leading members of the order believe that Pittsburg will have a walkover in securing the next conclave for that city, but say there will be a spirited contest for some of the offices of the grand encampment. The office of grand recorder is now filled by appointment, the former recorder having died recently. There are many candidates for that place, among the most prominent being W. B. Isaacs, Jr., son of the late grand recorder. Mr. Thomas of Washington, Mr. Ramsey of Pennsylvania, W. H. Mayo of Missouri and John A. Geron of Detroit.

It is generally understood that the grand master, Hugh McCurdy of Michigan, will be succeeded by W. La Rue Thomas of Kentucky.

The officers down to the junior grand warden will probably be promoted.

For the position of junior grand warden there will be several candidates. The chances are that W. B. Melish, imperial potentate of the Shrine, will be elected.

The Kansas delegation Knights Templar arrived at noon in fine condition and were escorted in procession by Demolay commandery to their headquarters. They were received with enthusiasm by the spectators en route.

Commanderies poured into the city by train and boat all day, in almost every instance the visitors were met by some local or suburban lodge and escorted to their various headquarters. Many of the visiting bodies brought their own bands or drum corps with them, and the scene at the stations were those of gaiety and pleasant confusion and bustle. A large number of commanderies scheduled to arrive at 9 and 10 o'clock were from two to three hours late, but when they did come they seemed to come in as fast as the tracks could be cleared to make room for them.

South Dakota No. 1 of Deadwood, Mount Labor No. 5 of Fremont, Neb.; Melita No. 22 of Chadron, Neb., and a large number of Eastern and minor delegations were included in the arrivals.

The headquarters of the visiting Sir Knights are to-night the centers of jolly gatherings and receptions, everybody keeping open house and dispensing hospitality with lavish hands. At the California headquarters visitors have had wine and luscious California fruits at their command and almost everything else that they had a mind to ask for.

The parade to-morrow bids fair to eclipse anything of the kind ever seen here.

Western Editors' Convention.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 26.—The two days' convention of Western editors will commence in this city to-morrow morning. The delegates who are from Wisconsin, Louisiana, Texas, Indian Territory, California, Ohio, Nebraska, Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Nevada, Utah and a few other States, numbering 300, are arriving to-night. The principal matters for consideration by the convention are the libel laws, the relation of railroads to newspapers, the silver question, arid lands and irrigation, and the formation of a Western editors' federation. Extensive preparations have been made for the entertainment of the delegates during their stay in this city.

Judge Caldwell's Candidacy.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 26.—Judge Caldwell who is here to enter the decree to-morrow in the Santa Fe railroad sale case, said in answer to a question regarding his name being circulated Presidentially: 'It is a matter about which I do not care to talk. So far as I am concerned the mention of my name in that connection is trivial. I do not regard it seriously, and I do not believe any one else does. I am for free silver without reservation or any reference to international agreement."

Arguments in the Taylor Case.

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 26.—This afternoon the attorney general continued his arguments in the Taylor case by citations from Justice Jackson. Attorney Stewart for the defense contended that the sentence of the lower court must stand or fall as a whole, and that the court could not modify it. He declared the State to be neither a public or private corporation but a body politic and that no State existed providing a penalty for embezzlement from the body politic. He cited a number of cases to show that the court must release the prisoner on the error of the lower court and that no division of sentence was possible. After a short closing speech by the attorney general the case went to the court which adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow. The prevailing opinion is that Taylor will not be released but that the sentence of the lower court will stand.

A STATEMENT FROM SPOFFORD.

The Librarian of Congress Makes a Public Explanation.

Washington, Aug. 26.—In view of the constructions that have been placed upon Mr. Spofford's statement that he recently paid to the treasury a sum of $22,400 on his accounts, the librarian of Congress desires that the following explanation be made public:

He states that the payment was what he had found to be the approximate balance between two accounts, the treasury owing him for several monthly disbursements of library salaries, and he owing the treasury copyright fees, the adjustment of which had been delayed by his engrossment in pressing labor, preventing close scrutiny and prompt balancing of accounts, during the entire time of this delay, running from October, 1893, he had continued to pay into the treasury every two or three months, copyright fees to the amount of over $55,000 in 1894 and 1895, exclusive of the $22,400 referred to. This was the plain state of the case—delayed adjustment of accounts and not a shortage, as has been widely reported. He distinctly denied that the recent deposit was to make good any wrongful withholding of moneys, due to the government.

Called on Waller.

Paris, Aug. 26.—Mr. Newton B. Eustis, son of the American ambassador, and Mr. Alexander, consul of the embassy, returned to-day from Clairvaux, whither they went to see John L. Waller, American ex-consul to Madagascar, who was sentenced by a court martial to a long term of imprisonment on conviction of having informed the Hovas with whom the French are at war, of the movements of the French. They were allowed to converse with Waller practically alone. The rules of the prison allow no prisoner to see any visitor except in the presence of an official. In this case, however, the rule was but technically observed. The governor remained in the next room to that in which Mr. Eustis and Mr. Alexander saw Mr. Waller. The door between the rooms was left open, but practically the conversation was private.

Waller's health has improved since his arrival in France as a prisoner from Madagascar. He was suffering, upon his arrival, from the effects of the fever that prevailed in Madagascar. He seemed to be greatly cheered by the visit of Messrs. Eustis and Alexander, and by their assurances that the United States government would inquire thoroughly into his case.

When asked whether he had any complaint to make regarding his treatment in prison, Waller replied:

"No, but I would like to have a chair and a table."

This, however, according to the rules governing prisoners sentenced to solitary confinement, is not allowed. The American embassy will apply to the foreign office for the relaxation of the rules in Waller's case in order that he may be supplied with a chair and table.

Waller occupies a wainscoted cell that is reserved for political prisoners. He is allowed an invalid's diet, that is, whatever he requested in the way of meats or vegetables is furnished him.

He furnished Messrs. Eustis and Alexander with a full account of the proceedings of the court martial which convicted and sentenced him. This statement has been transmitted to the State Department at Washington.

The French Side of the Question.

Paris, Aug. 26.—The Temps asserts that, contrary to the statement made by Commander Perry of the American gunboat Castine, concerning the attempt of the French officials to prevent some of the Castine's officers from landing at Tamatative, Madagascar, that the officers were already ashore when the doctor and harbor master boarded the warship to examine her papers. Although an order of the commander of the naval station forbid landing without authority from him, some of the Castine's officers disregarded the order. The paper adds that the officers who opposed the landing of the men were only obeying orders.

Fire in the Treasury

Washington, Aug. 26.—Fire was discovered at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the stationery storage room of the Treasury department. A general alarm was turned in, but when the engines reached the scene the blaze had been extinguished. The damage, which was slight, was to paper only and to the rooms. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have been spontaneous combustion. Nearly all the clerks had left the building at the time the alarm was given, so there was no panic.

The War in Cuba.

Key West, Fla., Aug. 26.—Private letters received in this city from Havana, dated the 17th inst., state that in the battle of Placetas between the Spanish troops under Colonel Planca and the insurgents, the troops were completely routed. The battle lasted four hours.

On the 17th inst. the insurgents, under command of Fernando Fernandez, entered the town of Rojas, in Las Vilas district, and destroyed the railway depot and several wholesale houses. The insurgent forces around Remedios number 1,500, commanded by Bravo Diaz, Fernandez and Marsul, an Italian.

The people in Sanctus Spiritus are in a terrible condition. Provisions are very scarce and are held at exhorbitant prices.

Prominent Democrat Commits Suicide.

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—A special to The Chronicle from Wellsville, Mo., says that Hon. Solomon Hughlett committed suicide at noon to-day in James Payton's drug store at that place. Mr. Hughlett was one of the leading Democratic politicians of Missouri, was twice elected to the Legislature and had served two terms as prosecuting attorney of the county. No cause is known for the self murder.

BENDING HER SAILS.

The Valkyrie Again in the Water and Ready for the Race.

DEFENDER EXPECTED TO-DAY.

Valkyrie III Went to Sandy Hook to Take Her First Spin in American Waters, But Anchored in the Horse Shoe Instead.

New York, Aug. 26.—The Valkyrie escorted by a fleet of newspaper tugs went down to Sandy Hook this afternoon for the avowed purpose of taking her first spin in American waters under racing canvass, but disappointed a great many people by anchoring in the Horse Shoe and remaining there. Among the disappointed ones was Mr. George J. Gould, who went down to Sandy Hook on the Atalanta, was transferred to the Vigilant and sailed the Tobin bronze boat outside. Mr. Gould may have been out merely to try his hand at the wheel of the Vigilant and to see what kind of shape Mr. Willard has got her in, but the way he took the cup defender of 1893 outside the Hook and hovered about until nearly nightfall gave grounds for a suspicion that he wanted a brush with Valkyrie III.

The British yacht was floated at 9:30 a. m., the water having been let into the dry dock at Erie Basin two hours earlier. At 1:30 she was warped out of the dock and made fast to the side of her tender, the City of Bridgeport. The crew was busy all the time putting the finishing touches on her racing rig and making things shipshape. Capts. Cranfield and Sycamore and Mr. Glennie directed operations and Sailmaker Ratzy saw that the preparations for stretching canvas was complete.

At 1 o'clock the tug Lewis Pulver, with H. Maitland Kersey on board, arrived. The Pulver was given a line and the Valkyrie started out of the basin in tow. As the yacht proceeded down the bay, the work of bending the mainsail was begun. The United Press tug, C. L. Raymond, and four other tugs carrying newspaper men and photographers were in line.

In the lower bay the Vigilant was found with mailsail, club topsail, jib and staysail up, cruising about in the main ship channel. She met the Valkyrie and going about, followed her down to the Horse Shoe, inside of Sandy Hook. Just as the British yacht reached the southwest spit inside the Hook the steam yacht Atalanta with George Gould, Edwin Gould and several guests arrived. The Atalanta dropped anchor and Mr. George Gould was rowed to the Vigilant. As he stepped aboard and took the wheel he was given three cheers by the crew. The Vigilant had on a new suit of clothes, and so fine has been seen on any yacht in these waters this year at least. The sails were all made by Sawyer, the Herreshoff sails having apparently been abandoned. The mailsail had clothes running from head to foot, and the four outside clothes being newer than the rest of the sail, indicated that it is one of her old mainsails enlarged. The jib sail and club topsail fitted perfectly. The jib was without the club, which has distinguished the Vigilant from the Defender all summer. The baby jib topsail afterward was broken out. It had five battens in it and set as flat as a board. As soon as Mr. Gould stepped aboard the Vigilant was put about and went outside of Sandy Hook. Meanwhile the work of bending the mailsail progressed slowly on the Valkyrie. Instead of going outside, she went into the Horse Shoe, but held on to her lug.

Mr. Ratzy stated before leaving Erie Basin that the mailsail could be bent in 45 minutes. Instead, the crew worked at it three hours. Then, at 5 o'clock, the halyards were manned and the sail was hoisted. It proved to be a handsome piece of canvass and of enormous proportions. The 40 men seemed to have all they wanted to do to get the throat and peak of the gaff well up. The sail set well except at the foot. There was considerable fullness from the mast two-thirds of the way to the end of the boom. The sail seemed to be about six feet longer at the foot and four or five feet taller than the mainsail of the Vigilant or Defender. Sailmaker Ratzy examined it closely and made notes for some slight trimming down at the foot. Mr. Kersey viewed the sail from a Naptha launch, and after a consultation with the others on the Valkyrie he went over to the City of Bridgeport which had arrived and anchored near by. The Valkyrie dropped her anchor and dismissed the Pulver and at 5:45 the mailsail was lowered and all prospect for a sail to-day was abandoned. The bib staysail was on deck ready to be sent aloft, but the mailsail was the only canvass put in place to-day. Whether the people on board the British yacht were influenced in giving up the proposed sail to-day by the presence of the newspaper tugs or the actions of the Vigilant is not known. It is pretty well understood that Lord Dunraven's people would prefer a quiet spin when no one was looking, and with no boat like the Vigilant about to get a line on the cup hunter. In all probability the British boat will trim her mainsail, gather her sails in place and take a sail early to-morrow morning.

At 6 o'clock the Vigilant returned inside the Hook and anchored near the Valkyrie for the night. The Vigilant is in better shape than ever and the sails used to-day will probably be employed in the next trial race which is set for Thursday at 11 a. m.

The Defender is expected here to-morrow, and will also make her headquarters in the Horse Shoe when she arrives.

Receivers Appointed.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 26. On the application of the Central Trust company of New York for receivers for the St. Joseph and Grand Island railroad, Judge Sanborn to-day in the United States circuit Court appointed the Union Pacific receivers as such receivers, the St. Joe and Grand Island being a feeder of the Union Pacific. The petitioner may come into court later and ask for other receivers.

Hardin's Fourth Debate with Bradley.

Bowling Green, Ky., Aug. 26.—The fourth of the series of joint debates between Messrs. Hardin and Bradley attracted six thousand people here to-day. Colonel Bradley opened in an address of an hour and 15 minutes, after which General Hardin replied in a speech of one hour and 30 minutes, and then Mr. Bradley in a rejoinder of 15 minutes. Referring to the negroe question, Colonel Bradley repeated his statement that he was opposed to the enactment of a law similar to that passed in New York, allowing the negroes to enjoy equal rights with the white people in hotels and opera houses.

Bradley said in reply to Hardin:

"I want to settle that question as to my stand on the currency question. I am for a gold standard, do you hear?"

Hardin made one of his characteristic speeches, calling on God and man to stand by the party and to support a man who would not betray his principles.

EXONERATED.

Professor Ryder Acquitted of Charges of Heresy at Andover.

Andover Mass., Aug. 26.—Professor William H. Ryder has been exonerated by the board of visitors and the board of trustees of Andover Seminary on the charges of heresy, and the second inquiry into the soundness of the famous Andover creed is at an end.

The decision in favor of Professor Ryder was unanimous. Professor Ryder was given an opportunity to make an uninterrupted statement of his belief.

The hearing developed the fact that the inquiry as to Professor Ryder's religious views has been in progress three years, and, after a most searching examination, the verdict is given that Professor Ryder's expressed views are within the limits of the Andover creed. The two main points at issue were his views as to the divinity of Christ as the only redeemer of the world, and also regarding the person of Christ.

PENNSYLVANIA POLITICS.

Both the Quay and the Administration Leaders are Confident of Victory.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—Whether Senator Quay or the leaders arrayed against him will control the Republican organization in the State after Wednesday remains to be determined. Nothing has occurred to-day that would indicate the result of the bitter factional conflict. Both the Quay and administration leaders are confident of victory, but it is quite evident that somebody is making estimates that will not hold water. Several defections from the Quay ranks were reported this afternoon, among those mentioned in this connection being delegates from Erie, Butler and Allegheny. Of course the cry of bribery is raised frequently but the anti-Quay people say it is only now becoming apparent whether the opponents have been reckoning without a true knowledge of the facts. They declare the fight has been won for the administration, and that no amount of bluffing will change the result. On the other hand, Senator Quay's supporters assert most positively that the victory is theirs and that under no circumstances can they be defeated. To those who have been quietly observing the manouvers today, there is a haze shrouding the situation which cannot be easily penetrated. Guessing is indulged in by everybody, but there is little or no betting. The figure men on Senator Quay's side say he will have from 10 to 30 majority, but the administration calculations reverse these figures in their own favor.

MYSTERIOUS POISONING.

300 Persons Poisoned at a Lutheran Church Festival.

La Porte, Ind., Aug. 26.—Three hundred persons were mysteriously poisoned at a Lutheran church festival held yesterday at Tracy, this county, where 1,000 people had congregated to pay religious reverence to the occasion. Those stricken suffered the most terrible agony, entire families succumbing to the strange disorder, the tortures of which were only alleviated after the arrival of physicians. The symptoms of poisoning developed in most cases immediately after dinner, but last night and to-day there were numerous additions of victims to the fatal list. Physicians hold to the theory that some portion of the food was impregnated with poison, and a rigid investigation will be made. It is stated to-day that all will recover.

Chess Masters' Tournament.

Hastings, Eng., Aug. 26.—The sixteenth round of the international chess masters' tournament was played at Brassey Institute to-day. Following are the results up to 5 o'clock:

Gunsberg beat Mason in a Scotch game after 34 moves; Steinitz beat Albin in a P-Q-4 opening after 34 moves; Tinsley beat Bardeleben in a Queen's gambit declined after 22 moves; Tschigorin beat Vergani in a giuoco piano after 36 moves; Marco and Schlechter drew a Petroff after 20 moves.

The remaining games of the sixteenth round, finished this evening, resulted as follows: Tarrasch beat Blackburn in a French defense after 30 moves; Lasker beat Schiffers in a four knights game after 53 moves; Walbrodt and Pollock (Vienna) and Bird and Janowski (P-K-B-4) drew their games after 41 and 114 moves respectively.

The seventeenth round will be played to-morrow.

The French Have Captured Ariba.

Paris, Aug. 26.—General Duchesne, the commander of the French forces operating in Madagascar, has informed the War Office, under date of the 22d inst., that the French have captured Ariba, almost without a fight. His dispatch says: "We opened the attack yesterday. The enemy became demoralized by our artillery fire and quickly evacuated six fortified positions. We captured seven guns. The only losses sustained were the killing of one Malagasy sharpshooter and the wounding of an artilleryman.

Seeking a Mint Site.

Denver, Aug. 26. R. E. Preston, director of the United States mint, arrived from Washington to-day to select a site for the Denver mint. It will require 10 days to examine all the properties that are offered.

Two Mills at Mespath.

Mispath, L. I., Aug. 26.—Kid Lavigne knocked out Jim Handler in one minute, seven seconds, in the fifth round.

Frank Fade knocked out Jack Skelly of Brooklyn at the Empire Athletic club tonight in two minutes and 40 seconds, in the seventh round.

VETERANS TO MEET.

The Chickamaugua and Chattanooga National Military Park

WILL BE DEDICATED SEPT. 19.

Survivors of the Engagements at Chickamauga and Chattanooga to Participate in the Exercises—Extensive Preparations.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Secretary of War Lamont to-day issued formal orders regarding the national dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park, which will take place on the 19th and 20th of September. The exercises on the first day will be at Snodgrass Hill, Chickamauga battlefield, when addresses will be delivered by Gen. John M. Palmer of Illinois, and Gen. John B. Gordon of Georgia. On the 20th the exercises will take place in the city of Chattanooga, where the speakers will be Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio and Gen. William B. Bates of Tennessee. The evenings of both days will be devoted to meetings of the veterans of the armies participating in the two battles.

The orders issued to-day extend invitations to all the survivors of the armies that were engaged in the battles of Chickamauga and Chattanooga.

In view of the large attendance which now seems assured, the orders suggest that all who expect to be present make immediate arrangements for quarters.

Gen. J. S. Fullerton, chairman of the commission, is designated as grand marshall of the ceremonies.

The band and one battalionof the Sixth infantry, and the band and one battalion of the Seventeenth infantry, the band and one battalion of the Third artillery, all under command of the lieutenant colonel of the Third artillery, will encamp on the field of Chickamauga about Sept. 1 prox., and remain until after the ceremonies.

The troops will be employed in preserving order within the park and the protection of public property.

THE GLOCKNER SHOOTING.

A Later and More Correct Account of the Affair.

Mr. Hugh E. Williams of Falcon was in the city last night, and from him was obtained a more correct account of the shooting of Lee Glockner near Falcon on Saturday. Mr. Williams was an eye witness of the shooting, and was acquainted with all the facts leading up to it.

It seems that last winter Bonjour, who was working for Mr. Mulloy, on his ranch 10 miles east of Falcon, was branding a calf, and he treated the animal so cruelly that Miss Mulloy expostulated. Bonjour returned an insulting reply, and Glockner slapped him.

Bonjour's wife considered the blow a great disgrace, and so kept nagging at him to have Glockner arrested. The matter dragged along without action until last Friday Glockner was arrested on a warrant sworn out in Colorado City, for assault. He pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and costs, hich he paid.

On Saturday Glockner, with Williams, Andy Mulloy, Miss Ryan and Mr. Ray, was riding near the Mulloy-ranch, when they came upon Bonjour. Glockner stepped forward and told Bonjour courteously that he wanted to speak to him. He was unarmed. Bonjour waited until he was only 12 feet from him, then he said "I've got you now," and started to draw a revolver from his pocket. It caught for a moment, and Glockner sprang for him, but he got the weapon loose and began shooting. The first shot took effect in Glockner's right wrist. Glockner threw up his left arm to protect his heart, and the second bullet struck him in the upper part of it, causing the blood to flow in a stream.

Bonjour at once tried to make his escape. He tried to secure a pony belonging to Mulloy, but failed, and started off toward McFerran. Mulloy rode after him, and bluffed him with a pole, which he took for a Winchester, and compelled him to surrender at Cook's ranch.

Williams says that all the parties to the shooting were perfectly sober at the time, and that it was a cold-blooded shooting. He says that Bonjour said that he shot for the heart, after he was arrested.

Glockner is now in the care of Dr. Logan at Falcon. The bullet has been extracted from his wrist, and the other one will be taken from his arm to-day. He refused to take chloroform for the operation.

Bonjour has been working for Mulloy on an agreement of so much crop for so much work. He bears a bad reputation.

For Contempt of Court.

Denver, Aug. 26.—Attorneys for Harper Brothers and A. M. Palmer to-day asked Judge Hallett of the United States District Court, to compel McKee Rankin, the actor, and H. L. Widner, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court. Some months ago Judge Hallett restrained the defendants from producing "Trilby" on the stage in this city, and now they are alleged to be giving the play at one-night stands in Arkansas and Texas. The court will proceed against the actor and his manager.

Arrested for Smuggling.

New York, Aug. 26.—Customs inspectors arrested a man who gave them a card with the name of Jacquez F. Nolteneus of Kansas City on it, for smuggling. He was a passenger on the steamer La Champagne, and swore that he had no dutiable articles. On examining his baggage, dutiable articles were found worth $3,000. The officer kept their man in custody at his hotel last night and to-day he was brought before Commissioner Alexander, who placed him under $5,000 bail for examination Friday afternoon.

He was said to be assistant secretary of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust company of Kansas City.

Kansas City, Aug. 26. Jacquez F. Nolteneus of this city, who was arrested in New York to-day on a charge of smuggling, is assistant secretary of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust company here. He is a native of Amsterdam, Holland, where his father's family, a very wealthy one, resides. His reputation during his residence here has been first class, and his brother officers in the company with which he is connected, scout the idea that he is a smuggler.

It has been his custom to visit Amsterdam every year, and six weeks ago he left here for that city. Nothing has been heard from him since then until the United Press telegram of to-night told of his arrest. He is himself wealthy, and besides his duties as an officer of the trust company, he represented a number of Dutch investors in Missouri and Kansas interests.

Reception to Admiral Kirkland.

Havre, Aug. 26.—President Faure, who is at present stopping at his residence in this city, gave a reception to-day to Admiral Kirkland of the United States navy and a number of officers of the United States steamer San Francisco, which is now in this harbor. Chancellor, the American Consul, was also among the guests.

PREPARING FOR PEACH DAY.

There Will be Accomodations For All Who Wish to Attend.

Special to The Gazette:

Grand Junction, Aug. 25.—Arrangements are already almost complete for the great carnival to be held here September 4th. The exercises of the day will be held in the City Park. A large arbor capable of seating 5000 people has been erected, and will be covered with brush. Here Hon. W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, the famous silver champion, will address the people in the afternoon of September 4th.

A dining hall 200 feet long and 25 feet wide has been erected, and is now ready for its canvas cover. Here a substantial meal will be spread and fifteen tons of peaches will be on the board. The tables will have 16,000 square feet of room.

The committee have arranged for 2000 house tents, with full complement of cots to accomodate those who wish to stay all night—These tents will be in place by next Sunday.

In addition to these, the railway companies are to have a number of Pullman sleepers on their tracks here, for the accommodation of travelers.

The exhibit hall is 75 by 100 feet, and there will be several small additional exhibit halls. The show of fruit and other products will be far the finest ever seen in the State.

Assurances have been received from prominent men from all over the State that they will be present, and the largest crowd in Grand Junction's history is expected and will be cared for.

Special trains will be run down from Glenwood in the morning of Peach day, and back in the evening, so that those who wish to stay at the Hotel Colorado, with its elegant accommodations, may do so conveniently.

PROCEEDINGS OF PARLIAMENT.

Newfoundland and the Dominion—British Troops in China.

London, Aug. 26.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. William Johnston, Conservative member for South Belfast, asked for information as to the position of the negotiations which had been pursued between Newfoundland and Canada to the end that the former should be merged into the Dominion. He also asked whether the home government would assist in settling the financial difficulties of Newfoundland.

Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Colonies, said that the negotiations were in abeyance owing, he believed, to the disinclination of the Dominion to assume the debt of Newfoundland. If the second part of Mr. Johnston's question meant the imposition upon the taxpayers of Great Britain of any liability for the debt of the colony of Newfoundland, Mr. Chamberlain said, he must be answered in the negative.

Mr. George N. Curzon, Under Foreign Secretary, stated the report that the troops sent to escort the British Consul to Ku-Cheng had plundered the Christian mission at that place, was not confirmed. Office, he said, had not heard anything in regard to any misconduct of the escort. The government, however, upon learning that the Chinese authorities at Ku-Cheng objected to the presence of the British Consul at the inquiry into the outrage, had sent a protest to the Pekin government, which had immediately telegraphed orders that the Consul should be shown every possible facility to enable him to watch the examinations.

A Reported Encounter.

Havana, Aug. 26.—A dispatch from Manzanillo says: It is reported a rebel band attacked the village of Niquero on Aug. 21 and were repulsed with a loss of many killed and wounded. The government loss was one killed and one wounded.

A. R. U. Membership Rapidly Increasing.

Lima, O., Aug. 26.—One of the shrewdest organizers known among railroad men was sent into this territory a few weeks ago. The result is a new lodge of the A. R. U., which is said to number from 700 to 1,100 men. The claim is now made with the greatest confidence that within 60 days all the engineers and conductors on the Brice system will be organized. There is an intense feeling here as the work of organizing progresses, and the fact that so many are joining gives them the independence that comes from numbers.

A $20,000 Damage Suit.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 26.—David Judy, of this city, filed a $20,000 damage suit against the Lake Erie and Western railroad. Two years ago he was riding north of this city when he was run down by a passenger train. His horse was killed and the rig demolished and he was crippled for life.

LONDON LETTER.

THE NATIONAL LIBERAL CLUB MAKES AN IMPORTANT MOVE

Will the Irish Alliance be Weakening [illegible] — Civil Marriages Declared an Offence Against Church Discipline — Lord Dunraven May Not Agree to Race on Sept. 7.

(Special London Letter.)

London, Aug. [illegible] [illegible] the National Liberal Federation and the [illegible] which [illegible] holds the party purse, have decided to convene a general national conference [illegible] has taken upon itself the responsibility of summoning a congress for [illegible]. This action marks a new party departure of the greatest moment and will more [illegible] within the National Liberal club, the strongest element of which is radical. It [illegible] a root and branch reform in the National Liberal Federation, and lead to the construction of a [illegible] which will give orders instead of receiving them from the party whips who have hitherto [illegible] and ruled the [illegible] meetings, at which the [illegible] the [illegible] between. The scheme is [illegible] that the federation be reconstructed by the free election of all the committees and officials, so as to make the club the living representative of [illegible] force. The existing officials, whips and other [illegible] do not approve of the holding of a conference; nevertheless they must bow before the decision. Every Liberal association has already [illegible] to send delegates. All Liberal [illegible] and candidates absenting themselves will be marked men. Among the great organizations that will be represented are the National Reform Union, the Midland Liberal association, and the London, Scottish and Welsh associations. The wirepullers and bosses will alone make a poor show at the conference. Apart from the main question of reorganization [illegible] will be made to [illegible] platform, of which, by far the most [illegible] plank is temperance legislation, the future relations of the Liberals and the Irish Parliamentary party coming next in importance.

There is considerable doubt as to whether the Irish alliance will be retained. The Irish organs, Parnellite and anti-Parnellite alike, have adopted an expectant attitude towards the government. Whatever reforms, says The Freeman's Journal, the government undertakes will have the strenuous assistance of the Nationalists as aids to home rule.

The Dublin Independent says that much good is likely to be done during the time that the Earl of Cadogan holds the viceroyship of Ireland. It adds:

"Let the dead past bury its dead in the general interests of civilization and progress."

Obviously the Parnellites and anti-Parnellites are ready to throw aside their Liberal allies.

Mr. Henry Labouchere, the well-known Radical leader, came from Marienbad to London to attend the meetings of the Radical committee. He persists in his contention that the first essential is to depose Lord Rosebery from his position as leader of the Liberal party, and it is likely that the coming conference will result to the deposition of the ex-prime minister.

Mr. Labouchere and Sir William Vernon Harcourt, ex-chancellor of the exchequer, are about to start for Lake Como.

The committee of the English church union recently startled church circles by declaring that civil marriages were an offense against church discipline. Parties who had incurred censure by entering into such marriages ought, according to the committee, to obtain absolution before being admitted to communion, the further ceremonies of the ring and the joining hands ought to occur and the benediction be given. The report staggered even the council of the union as throwing doubts on the validity of the civil contract. The matter was again referred to the committee, who now report that they did not mean to suggest the necessity for a religious renewal of the marriage contract, but only a solemn acknowledgement in face of the church by the parties who had contracted civil marriages. The council now proposes to seek a deliverance from the church convocation. The question arouses the keenest feeling among church adherents.

According to The Speaker, the weekly organ of the Liberals, the attitude of that party on the Chinese mission outrages is distinctly in favor of active intervention. Lord Salisbury, the paper declares, should obtain an anglo-American entente under which the first work should be the further opening up of China. The government at Pekin would be wise to accept foreign aid to restore order, if only to save itself. A family council of the nations could, without difficulty, sentence China to the tutelage of a native gendarmerie officered by Europeans. This is not yet probable, although it would be certain to benefit the central government, but it will come soon unless the Pekin government responds to the just demands of the powers.

That Lord Dunraven will agree to sailing the first race of the series for the Americas cup on Sept. 7 is deemed doubtful here. The tactics of yatching experts, The Yatchtsman says, gives the challenger a poor chance of getting in proper trim, although they are quite in accord with the spirit of the deed of gift and Lord Dunraven has the reputation in Marcia of being too good a sportsman not to be fair game.

Another paper says that all stories about the Defender's condition ought to be taken with a deal of salt, as Americans do and say everything with a purpose.

A well-known Clyde yatchtsman, who is following the Vigilant-Defender races, declares that the Defender is too lightly rigged. He says that she cannot beat the Vigilant enough to give her time allowance, if the Vigilant is properly sailed.

The Board of Agriculture threatens to withdraw the privilege given to American inspectors to verify at the ports of landing alleged cases of pleuro-pneumonia in cattle. Two Canadian cattle, suffering from pleuro-pneumonia were recently landed at Deptford, and the Canadian authorities were refused permission to examine them. A clamor to obtain for Canadians the same privileges as the Americans inspectors enjoy is now being raised.

The Rt. Hon. Walter Long, president of the Board of Agriculture, contends that there is no privilege in the act of Parliament permitting foreign [illegible]. The Washington government may, therefore, be prepared to [illegible] that the privilege accorded the American [illegible] has been rescinded.

The [illegible] between trains on the railways between London and Aberdeen have [illegible] as to the safety [illegible] [illegible] and the [illegible] in the [illegible]. The [illegible] comes from a [illegible] who [illegible] was the [illegible] of an express [illegible] New York Central railroad. He says he never met a driver who preferred a slow to a fast train. It is often [illegible], he [illegible], to say that a fast train with a [illegible] on the [illegible]. The [illegible] that [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] from the [illegible], as a rule, they are [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] when they were [illegible] years old and they were [illegible] enjoying robust health. One of the most daring drivers in the United States is [illegible] and is the picture of health. Accidents to trains when running at high speed are exceedingly rare with good roads and rolling stock. Accidents might not [illegible]. He contends that it is perfectly safe to [illegible].

It has been said, [illegible] that there are [illegible] American passengers on the channel steamer Seaford of the New Haven-Dieppe line that was sunk on Tuesday last in collision with the steamer Lyons [illegible]. A number of applications to the American embassy for aid to [illegible] from the [illegible] the value of their lost luggage have been made. Ambassador Bayard is willing to personally assist the claimants among the company, [illegible] official means to help the [illegible]. Some of the Americans have made individual claims against the company. If these claims are not paid in a few days they will be placed in the hands of an attorney.

The Board of Trade denies that it has any intention to send a delegate to Washington to arrange a joint scheme to destroy derelicts, more especially those floating in the North Atlantic, which action has been urged upon the board by the committee of Lloyd's. The Board of Trade holds that the question is a diplomatic one and that it is within the functions of the Foreign Office.

[illegible] Mr. R. L. Garner, who after a few days in Paris, has just sailed for Gaboon, Africa intends to stay in Africa but a few months to secure several young apes that have been captured for him, which he will take directly to New York in continuance of his investigation of their language. He will avoid Europe and make the voyage home with his apes, by way of the Azores, the British climate having proved too rigorous and unacclimated for apes. Mr. Garner's last collection of [illegible] succumbed to pneumonia in London. Mr. Garner expects to educate his next batch of young monkeys in the rudiments of English, not with any view of personal profit, as he is a man of independent means and has undertaken his experiments solely for his own pleasure, he says. His fad has elicited only ridicule in England, but in France his efforts are considerately watched, and he claims to be not wholly without honor at home.

Several American officers have witnessed the August manoeuvres in England and are going home enthusiastic for similar mobilizations annually in the United States. They were much impressed to find at Aldershot, just outside of London, a force outnumbering the entire standing army of the United States. In this force were 24,000 volunteers, who are similar in all respects to the American National Guard. These volunteers were included in ninety corps gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom, and in the opinion of American officers, the uniform discipline and the contact with volunteers from various sections of the country, as well as their associations with regulars, could not be otherwise than extremely beneficial. It appeared to them exceedingly advisable to establish an American field for manoeuvers where portions of the militia from various States might spend a few weeks each summer in service with regulars. It would at least familiarize the officers with large bodies of men.

At the twenty-eighth annual Trades Union congress to be held at Cardiff, in September, Samuel Gompers and P. J. McGuire are expected as delegates from the American Federation of Labor. David Holmes, chairman, and Sam Woods, M. P., secretary, constitute the committee delegated to meet the American representatives. The object of the congress this year is to urge Parliament to hold an autumn session for the special purpose of at once [illegible] useful employment for the hundreds of thousands of [illegible] [illegible] afforded by [illegible] works on a grand scale. The [illegible] will [illegible] suggest [illegible] the [illegible] of Crown lands, [illegible] of light railways, break-waters and harbors of refuge, efficient sanitation of all towns and cities, reclamation of waste lands and farm colonization. The congress is also expected to urge the passage of a general eight-hour law, laws for the payment of members of Parliament, for the speedy abolishment of the House of Lords, for prohibiting the emigration of alien paupers and a number of other measures.

The Finals at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—The finals for the all-comers trophy and the championship tennis attracted an immense crowd of spectators to the Casino this morning. Hovey and Larned were the two men who had successfully run the gauntlet of the week's play and came to the final struggle, the former winning, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Soon after the conclusion of the match Wrenn, the champion, went out with Neel for his daily practice, but only a few out of the large crowd remained to watch his style.

The Duke of Marlborough with Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt, Miss Consuela Vanderbilt and a small party came in during the latter part of the match. Summary:

Tennis finals: Hovey beat Larned, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Consolidations, third round—R. C. Sands beat Stille, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

G. H. Wrenn, Jr., beat Tate, 6-2, 6-2.

Cushman beat W. A. Jones, 6-2, 6-2.

Fourth round Cushman beat G. H. Wrenn, Jr., 1-6, 6-6, 6-4.

C. E. Sands beat Jones, [illegible], 5-7, 6-4, [illegible].

Hovey will meet Wrenn to-morrow.

Fatal Result of an Old Feud.

Marysville, Cal., Aug. 26.—[illegible] Manaugh, a wealthy rancher living near here, was shot and killed by Hillard Crum, a neighboring rancher, to-day. The tragedy was the result of an old feud. Crum gave himself up to the authorities.

[illegible] P. Anderson of Washington is stopping a few days at the Manitou hotel.

Mr. Paul G. Scherb and wife of Cairo, Ill., registered at the Mansions yesterday.

The guests of the Mansions who were removed to the Manitou hotel on account of the Mansions closing, enjoyed a tallyho picnic in the Mansions park yesterday afternoon. Several photos were taken that were very amusing.

Mr. P. Hogan of Tyler, Tex., who spent last summer at the Graham, has returned to that house for a stay of several weeks.

A large number of the Wisconsin editors were in Manitou Sunday. After a good lunch at the Iron Springs they went to the Peak on the Cog.

The Hiawatha club will close for the season Sept. 1, and Manager Smith has yielded to the wishes of a large number of ladies and consented to name Monday, Sept. 2, as "ladies' day" at the Hiawatha. This club house is famous for its handsome furnishings and beautiful paintings, and as the ladies have never had an opportunity to inspect it, they will be given that privilege next Monday. Ladies will be admitted with or without gentlemen escorts, but no gentleman will be admitted unless accompanied by a lady.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Martinsville, O., accompanied by their son, Master Forrest, 11 years old, are spending a week in Manitou en route to the Pacific coast. They are making the trip on bicycles, having wheeled almost the entire distance from Ohio. Yesterday they accomplished the ascent of Pike's Peak on foot. They say Manitou is the most charming place they have visited.

St. Andrew's Ladies' Guild will give a lawn social at the home of Mrs. John Hulbert, Friday, Aug. 30. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon and evening for 25 cents. From 4 to 7 p. m. music will be rendered by the Hallis orchestra. In the evening a musical programme will be given. Strangers will be cordially welcomed.

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. Wm Boynton Sunday morning, and claimed her only brother, Thomas Ewens. The death was an extremely sad one, as the young man was taken from the troubles of this world after a sickness of only one day. The sympathies of the many friends of the mother and sister go to them in their grief, and those who remember the Christian life of the deceased feel the loss of one who will be missed by the young people of the Congregational church, but who will ever be remembered as a faithful servant of his Master.

Do not forget the number, it is No. 10 Pike's Peak avenue. Murison's the place to get very cheap tickets East for the next few days.

BICYCLE PARADE.

A Novel and Beautiful Parade Friday Night.

SOME BEAUTIFUL DISPLAYS.

The Leading Features Briefly, but It Should Have been Seen to be Appreciated—The Prizes Satisfactorially Awarded.

It was perhaps a little fortunate after all that the lantern parade could not come off on the night of the 22nd It was such a beautiful affair, so well gotten up and so well managed, that it deserved sharp faculties to appreciate it

The line of march was lined with people It is hard to estimate the crowd in the darkness, but there were at least five thousand people strung along the sidewalks. Some of the displays were surprisingly beautiful, some were remarkable for their ingenuity, and others were not only beautiful but required great skill to successfully navigate them

About seventy-five wheels were in line In the great majority of cases, only two or three lanterns were carried on the handle bars, without special attempts at display Some of the ladies wore beautiful costumes, specially prepared for the occasion, but the light was not thrown upon them, and the spectator missed a great deal of enjoyment The parade was six blocks long, and made a beautiful line of color Special praise is due those who turned out without hope of a prize, simply to make the parade longer, and to add to the display of lights.

The procession was very properly headed by the beautiful coupled wheels, ridden by Wahl brothers It was a Japanese design. A great paper parasol surmounted the whole. On each corner were smaller parasols, and from each rib end depended a lantern. There were lanterns on every place that one could be hung and it was a moving tower of light. The two brothers were in Chinese costumes and, on a seat behind them, sat Mr Wahl's little girl, dressed in Japanese costume and carrying a parasol The whole effect was dainty, and beautiful It was awarded the first prize for coupled wheels

A. C. Van Cott had easily the best single wheel display of the occasion High over his head rose a Japanese umbrella, of eight feet spread. From each end of a rib depended a lantern Above this was still another parasol, a smaller one, and this too had a fringe of lanterns The colors were carefully chosen, and the effect was stunning It was no snap to keep the thing right side up, either, but he succeeded admirably. This was of course, given the first prize in that class.

Charles Ashton was a dream in white. He had a white parasol, he wore a white suit, and his wheel was covered, frame and wheels, in white cloth The lanterns were some of them inside the parasol, and this sent down a soft glow that illuminated his get up, while some of the others rode in comparative darkness.

The only tandem in the parade was ridden by Miss Ella Badger and B H Barret They both wore white Turkish costumes. The frame and wheels were draped in white The lanterns were carried on a tall mast, with crossing spars like a ship.

G. O. Vaux had lanterns arranged on a light framework, so that he rode inside a hemisphere of light.

A. G Marston had a steamer of white cloth, which he called the "Thetis" It was about sixteen feet long and three feet beam, and to carry such a long display on a single wheel required very skillful riding. It was profusely illuminated with lanterns.

A. E. Hart had a big parasol surrounded with lanterns.

M. F. Parsons had a sort of bowsprit rigged in front of his wheel, carrying lanterns.

J. E Coleman had three lanterns effectively displayed, and another at the end of a pole

Art Mathews had a string of lanterns on a frame above his head, and a big fancy one out in front of him

George Alter, Jr., had a frame of lanterns above him, and one buster out in front.

J. P Davis had a canopy of bicycle wood rims arranged above his head. From each spoke hole depended a lantern.

Clyde Sargeant had his lanterns arranged in a circle in front of him

Joe Lazenby carried a three-sided lantern, bearing the monogram of the Pike's Peak roadsters His wheels were draped in bunting.

O. E Maddy had a rigging extended out behind his wheel, that he called a "bustle" for lack of a better name He had lantern also on the ribs of an umbrella frame above his head.

Roger Phillips had a wide light frame around his wheel, with nineteen lanterns strung along upon it. Some of them were big ones and some were very little.

Jake Blair rode in an athletic costume, and had lanterns suspended above his head

Burleigh Murphy, a boy, had a tasteful arch of lanterns

Mr. and Mrs. F E Stratton rode two coupled wheels, with a canopy of lanterns above them

J. C Keith rode inside a house of white muslin. On the roof he bore the initials of his club. "P. P. R."

The award of prizes was made in front of The Antlers hotel. The judges had a rather easy task, as the prize winners were pre-eminent in their respective classes.

Men's First: A. C Van Cott; second R Ashton.

Most unique and novel decoration—A E Marston

Girls under 15 Pearl Cummings, Ruth Hoagland.

Ladies First: Marie E Crowell, second Mrs. Harrison

Boys—First Roger Phelps, second Burleigh Murphy.

Tandems and coupled wheels—First Wahl Brothers, second Ella Badger and B H. Barret.

GOVERNOR M'INTIRE IN TOWN.

He Arrived With His Staff Thursday Morning—Social Gaieties.

The Governor and his staff arrived on the regular D. & R G. train at 11 45 Thursday morning and were met at the depot by the following committee: Mayor Plumb, Judge Lunt, Mr. Henry McAllister Jr, Mr C E Noble, Mr H J Hagerman and Mr George R Buckman The Governor's staff was composed as follows Adjutant General Moses, Assistant Adjutant General Kice Colonel Tuttle, Colonel Welswall Colonel Frank Colonel Hooper and Surgeon General Parkhill They were joined at the depot by Colonel Mayo of Denver, and Colonel Chubbock and Holden of Pueblo additional members of the staff All the members of the staff were in full dress uniform

They were accompanied by the following ladies Mrs Welswall, Miss Ethel Welswall Mrs George Gow, Mrs Hooper, Miss Tedford Miss Gertrude Gaylord and Miss Smith

Governor McIntire was driven to the residence of Dr Solly, and members of the staff were entertained by Mr R J. Bolles Mr L R Ehrich and at the El Paso club

After the parade the Governor and staff were taken to the El Paso club, and later they visited Camp J J Hagerman

In the evening Mr and Mrs Edsall entertained at dinner a party consisting of Governor McIntyre, General Wheaton, Judge Lunt Dr Solly, Mr Ward Hunt and Mr George R Buckman

Later in the evening, Dr and Mrs Anderson entertained the Governor and his staff, Major and Mrs Hood and other officers

At 9 30, the Governor and his staff and ladies, escorted by Mr C E Noble, Mr. Thos H Edsall Dr Solly, Mr Clarence Edsall and Mr George R Buckman, left for the Casino on a special car, kindly placed at their disposal by the Rapid Transit company and handsomely decorated with pine boughs and flowers The party spent the evening most enjoyably at the Casino and returned at a late hour

THE LISTENER.

The Marquis of Salisbury is in the highest sense of the word a self made man.

Mr Cassel, a Pennsylvania German, has a library composed entirely of Bibles The collection comprises all the old and curious editions.

Congressman Patterson of Tennessee is a tall, large boned, heavy set man, now well advanced in years. He has a deep, rich voice and is a fine orator.

Mayor Profert of Washburn, Wis, thinks he can stand more electricity than any other mayor in the world. He recently took a shock of 1,750 volts by accident.

That Assistant Secretary of State E. F. Uhl is very popular among Nicaraguans is evinced by the fact that that government has named a banana district in his honor.

W. Murray, the harbor master of Harwich, England, is the last survivor of the earliest expedition sent out under Sir James Ross to rescue the Franklin explorers.

George W Julian, who is living in a suburb of Indianapolis, is thought to be the last of the Free Soil party leaders now living. He is 78 years old and in good health

Abraham H. Cavender of St. Paul, now nearly 80 years of age, is living on the exact spot where he settled 47 years ago, when there were only five American families in the place.

Mr. Olney's first act as secretary of state was to hang a placard on the front door of his private office with the inscription, "Next Door." This was significant, for "next door" leads to his secretary's office.

Governor Brown of Maryland is one of the heirs of the late James Carroll of Charles county, a collateral descendant of Charles Carroll of Carrollton. The governor's share of the estate is estimated to be worth $250,000.

J. P. Chapman of Cassopolis, Mich., is the "cynosure of all eyes" wherever he goes. He hitches his white trotting dog Joe with a white Shetland pony, rides in a white sulky, wears a white suit himself and uses white reins.

Roundsman Michael Gorman, a New York policeman who saved a man's life at the Battery, rescued 24 persons previously from death. Twice he received life saving medals from congress, and he possesses one from the New York police department for his heroism

Dr. S J. McPherson of Chicago, who has been appointed one of the preachers at Harvard for next year, is almost as good an after dinner speaker as a pulpit orator. He is a graduate of Princeton and has been pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Chicago for about 12 years.

Phineas Moses, who died in Cincinnati the other day, at the age of 97, was one of a small band of pious Israelites who organized the first Hebrew congregation in Cincinnati on Jan. 18, 1824. He was also one of the few persons who saw Napoleon when he was exiled to the island of St. Helena

Attorney General Harmon came near expulsion on the eve of his college graduation because he was suspected of having taken part in a mock programme. He was not allowed on the platform at commencement, but received his diploma the next morning in front of the chapel attended by his sympathetic classmates with a brass band

WHEEL WHIRLS.

In England it has been suggested that bicycles be numbered and registered in order more readily to trace their owners in cases of accident.

The Rev. Madison C. Peters of New York is pronounced against the bicycle, saying that its influence upon the young of both sexes is pernicious

Now that the bicycle has been used to convey the message of an English premier to all of his associates every Anglomaniac will invest in a wheel as a matter of dooty. Boston Globe

Many members of the diplomatic corps in Washington, including four attaches of the Chinese legation, ride bicycles. The fashion was started by the Russian minister, Prince Cantacuzene.

The Princess Maud lately appeared in Battersea park mounted on a balloon tired "safety," though the Duchess of Connaught, being yet a learner, prefers to take her daily practice for the present in the secluded walks of Buckingham Palace gardens.

OUR CARNIVAL EDITION.

The Gazette takes pleasure in presenting to its readers [illegible] and a sketch of [illegible] of the flower parade. [illegible] printed, and copies may be obtained at the business office at the regular rate of five cents a copy.

The Flower Carnival is now a recognized [illegible] in Colorado Springs. [illegible] only two years ago it has now a firm hold on popular favor. Last year the display was so fine that there were many who feared that nothing could possibly be done to equal it [illegible] but this year, when the time came, the special features came with it, and the parade was an even greater success than that of 1894. Next year we may be sure that something else will be found to enhance the interest of the occasion, and so on indefinitely.

As we said on Friday [illegible] this is a [illegible] and [illegible] city, not given [illegible] or blowing of [illegible] about itself. We are [illegible] for Colorado and do not say much [illegible] for our city [illegible] do [illegible] except on rare occasions.

This is one of those occasions.

It is in human nature to [illegible]. We Colorado Springs people do it, [illegible] even about the weather; but they don't mean it; and at least once a year we feel [illegible] in expressing our belief that take it all around, this is altogether the best place in the visible universe in which to live. Our Flower Carnival is in truly the expression of our delight in living here. It is not altogether a festival of the flowers, although we think a great deal of them; it is meant to [illegible] some notion of our joy in being [illegible] to exist in such an atmosphere, amid such surroundings, and in such society.

It is natural and proper that a celebration of this sort should be held out of doors. We live out of doors, here, the greater part of the time. Our houses are as good as most houses, but out of doors is a great deal better than most outdoors, and we take advantage of the [illegible] in the sunshine a large part of the time and when we celebrate, we want to celebrate in the sunshine. [illegible]

The [illegible] feature of the parade this year was the presence of the military. Two battalions from Fort Logan—half a thousand men headed the procession, with flags flying and music playing, and as we looked upon their manly [illegible], we were prouder of our country than ever, and gave thanks not only that we live in Colorado, but also that Colorado is one of the United States. The visit of these troops has been one of the most delightful features of our summer. We were glad to have them here, and we think we have showed it and that they will want to come again. We should be glad to have them here every summer, and we hope it can be arranged that they take part of their summer outing here next season. To General Wheaton, to Major Hood and Major Coolidge and the other officers in the command, and not less to the enlisted men, many of whom made a hard march in order to get here in time to take part in the parade, our thanks are due for the honor they have done us and the pleasure they have conferred by their presence here.

Of the purely decorative features of the parade there is little need to speak here. The illustrations in our supplement, and the description in our news columns, tell the story. It was the most beautiful parade we have had; and, we venture to think, one of the most beautiful ever had anywhere. A great deal of time and trouble were expended on the decorations, and no small expense was incurred. The result was beyond the expectations of the most sanguine, and more than repaid all the labor and the money that had been spent.

Our description to-day of the parade and all the attendant circumstances is as complete as we could make it. [illegible]

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE NEXT CARNIVAL.

It may be well, while the carnival is fresh in mind, to think of possible improvements for next year's exhibition. [illegible]

One suggestion is, that the company of High School cadets would add a very pleasing feature to the procession. [illegible]

Another suggestion [illegible] to have next year not only a carnival day, but a whole [illegible] week. [illegible] Next year, the bicycle parade [illegible] be set for a different day from the other parade, and held in the day [illegible] and while the procession was [illegible] other parts of the city, [illegible] in front of the grand stand. Other diversions might be devised for another day or two; so that we might have at least a three-days festival, with something especially attractive on each day, [illegible] Friday of the week with the grand flower procession. We think this is an idea that is at least worth taking into serious consideration.

It is possible that the out-of-town features of the parade might be [illegible] with advantage. Denver and Pueblo each contributed to the success of this year's festival and Manitou did as much in proportion as this city. Further additions to the displays from other cities might add still more to the richness and variety of the show.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

There has been a great deal of [illegible] the past few days, of the various officials who are supposed to have been able to stop the bullfight at Gillett and did not do so. The Governor, the sheriff, the agent of the Humane society, and even the district attorney, have come in for their share of blame; and we think it is time that the public should be informed of the law and the facts, so that no blame may be [illegible] where none is deserved.

In the first place, there is no law against bullfighting in this State. In the second place, there is no Sunday law of this State that would cover the case. We have consulted some of the best lawyers in the city, and we find that the state of the case is about as follows:

The only law under which proceedings could be taken was the law prohibiting cruelty to animals. Under this law, the only officer who could possibly have done anything beforehand was the agent of the Humane society, and it is somewhat doubtful if even he could have had anybody arrested on suspicion, and before any overt act was committed. He could have attended the show, however, and as soon as any act of cruelty was committed, he could have ordered it stopped, and called on the sheriff to assist him to put an end to the whole proceedings; and if the sheriff was unable to do all that was necessary, he would have been backed up by the Governor and the State militia.

The Governor had no power to do anything more than he did do. He had everything ready to interfere in case he was called on by the proper authority, in the proper way, but he was not so called on.

The sheriff did all he could do under the law, and perhaps even exceeded his powers a little, so anxious was he to do everything possible to stop the fight. The only thing he could do under the law was to arrest the responsible person after the commission of an overt act of cruelty. This he did. But the Gillett constable [illegible] under the law, and after the case was tried and determined in the justice court, the sheriff could not re-arrest the man for the same offense. The prizefight, being a penitentiary offense, could be stopped and was stopped. There was no breach of the peace such as would have justified the sheriff in interfering as he would with a riot. Consequently we cannot see that Mr. Bowers was at all to blame for anything that happened. The only possible valid criticism that can be made upon him is that he intimated that he was able to stop the fight, doubtless with the purpose of inducing Wolfe to quit. That, however, only showed his desire to do everything he could for the prevention of the show.

PAYING THE PIPER.

A LOT OF TROUBLE IN STORE FOR WOLFE.

He Is Several Thousand Dollars Behind On His Great Fight—District Attorney Blackmer Is In Camp to Punish Some Defiant Law-Breakers.

Joe Wolfe has had his fun, and now he must pay the piper.

He has killed two bulls, but he is about $3,000 to $5,000 behind on his show, and he is in danger of getting into a good deal of trouble after all. It is a peculiarity of the laws of Colorado that although not much can be done to prevent the commission of lawless acts, they can be fully as severely punished after they occur, and District Attorney Blackmer is determined that Wolfe shall not escape.

There was no fight at Gillett yesterday. When the time came there were only about 200 in the amphitheater, and the show was declared off. Interest in the thing had collapsed. Very few took any great pleasure in the killing of the bulls. Those who came, were there out of curiosity, to see if Wolfe would really have a bull fight, and to see just what the thing was like. The probability of interference was another thing that took people there. They wanted to see a man fight. But when the sickening cruelty, the commonplace brutality of the fight was known, then there was no more interest, and the fight was a total failure financially.

Wolfe had a bull fight on Sunday. Deputy Sheriff Brisbin was there, and was powerless to do anything, in the presence of the mob of deputy marshals. Secretary Hill was condemning the Governor—in Colorado Springs, the Secretary Thompson was condemning Sheriff Bowers—in Denver, but neither of them wanted to be at Gillett, where the work was to be done, so that the Humane society was again not in any way represented.

The bull fights of Sunday were not anywhere near so interesting, from a Mexican standpoint, as the one of Saturday. Three of the bulls in succession refused to fight at all. The fourth fought a very little, but was killed in a bungling style by the alleged toreador.

The fight between Osborne and Hall did not come off. After every one had paid to see the whole thing, it was announced that a special admission of $2.50 would be charged for the prize fight. The audience left in disgust, and the few that were left were not enough to pay for one black eye, let alone a finish fight.

There came pretty near being trouble in camp last night. Deputy Sheriff Brisbin arrested Charles Meadows, "Arizona Charles," and had a rig all ready to bring him down here. Deputy Constable Hawkins demanded Meadows, as he had "arrested" him earlier in the day. There was a conflict of authority between the two that nearly resulted in a riot, but the matter was finally compromised by Meadows going before a justice of the peace and giving bond to appear at this city for trial.

A telephone message from camp last night said that District Attorney Blackmer was up there, and that he was going to make it a warm occasion for the gang of toughs that were there as "deputy marshals," and who prevented the deputies and the sheriff from doing their work. They will be charged with conspiracy, and have a good deal of trouble before they get through.

On Saturday Constable Hathaway of Cripple Creek appeared on the grounds and ordered the flim-flam games to shut down. He was at once hustled off the grounds and arrested for "disturbing the peace." It now appears that he was within his authority in ordering the games to cease, and that the men who hustled him have been interfering with an officer in the execution of his duty.

TROOPS LEAVE.

Mr. Buckman Goes Along to Lay Pipe For Next Year.

The troops have gone. The College reservation seems empty, and the blue coats on the streets are missed.

At 12 o'clock yesterday Camp Hagerman was abandoned, the heavy baggage was hauled to the depot, and a few moments later, the band leading the way, the battalion fell into line and marched off down Cascade avenue. The people of Colorado Springs will remember with warmest pleasure the short visit of the troops and there is every reason to believe that all our good will is reflected by the soldiers, from the general commanding down to the latest recruit.

Mr. Buckman went back to the post with the soldiers, to see that they got home safely. There were about 500 small boys here that would have liked to go, but they were left behind when the train pulled out. There is little sign on the reservation of the troops. The camp discipline was perfect, all the trash and garbage was carefully buried in pits or burned, and the whole 500, camping for four days, left behind less trace than an ordinary camping party will leave in the way of old tin cans in two days.

The band concert in the South Park Sunday afternoon was an immense success. The park was black with people, and 5,000 is a conservative estimate of the numbers. The band is an excellent one, and plays a high class of music.

On Sunday morning Dr. Hart sent up 15 gallons of ice cream from Hayward's to the camp. It was highly appreciated by the remaining battalion.

An effort will be made and kept up to secure another encampment here next year. The great drawback to the reservation is that there is no shade, and no facilities for the soldiers to bathe. Perhaps on the shores of Prospect Lake these troubles could be obviated. It is certain that if possible, the officers will be only too glad to come, and there will be very little grumbling in the ranks.

Casino Concert.

The following is the Casino programme for this afternoon. There will be dancing in the evening. Mr. Frederic Howard will sing next Sunday evening.

D. R. Black, a member of Troop A, relaxed from military discipline after the militia was discharged from duty Sunday afternoon to such an extent that he filled up to the muzzle with whisky. Then he threatened to kill Dr. Estill because he would not give him a prescription for more whisky. That landed him in the city jail. He was there only a short time, not locked in the cells, but in the room outside, before he opened a window and leaned out. He struck on a shed roof and broke his leg in two places. He will spend six weeks in bed, trying to teach himself a little sense.

KILLED BY THE CARS.

Fatal Accident to a Woman at Palmer Lake Yesterday.

Mrs. Lorenzen, a tourist, was fatally injured by the Rio Grande passenger train which passed through Palmer Lake about noon, bound north, yesterday. She was in a buggy from Younger & Roberts's livery stable up there. It was driven by a young man named Henry Lee. Her child was with Mrs. Lorenzen. While crossing the Rio Grande tracks north of town, the rig was struck by the train. The two horses were killed, and Mrs. Lorenzen received injuries about the spine which will prove fatal. The driver and the child escaped without injury. It is doubtful if the accident occurred in this county or in Douglas, as it was very near the line. There may be a conflict of coroners in the case.

The photographs of the Flower carnival that are reproduced in the supplement of this paper, are from negatives obtained by Messrs. H. S. Poley, C. E. Emery and Alfred Freeman. These gentlemen were very successful in their work, and can either of them furnish almost a complete set of full size pictures.

This is the pleasantest time of the year to make a trip to Pike's Peak. The weather is clear and pleasant and the view cannot be surpassed anywhere on this Continent. The Pike's Peak Cog road makes two trips a day, one in the morning at 9.15 and another at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Those who have never taken this trip, should avail themselves of the opportunity now.

Miss Kate Field, the noted lecturer and editress, is a guest at the Antlers. Miss Field is on her way to Honolulu, but as the steamer does not leave until the 11th of next month, she will spend some days here. To-day she is going up to Cripple Creek, and will go to the summit of the Peak before she leaves.

Considerable dissatisfaction is expressed in this city by keepers of boarding houses, and renters of furnished rooms, over the actions of one of the representatives of the Library association, who came down from Denver. It is alleged that he hired rooms, paying for them in advance, at $3 to $5 a week, and then turned them over to members of the association at $1 a day each, saying that this was the charge made by the landlady. The roomers in some cases found they were being charged pretty high, and in one case expostulated with their landlady, when the true state of affairs was discovered.

Mr. F. D. Barr of Davenport, Ia., is paying a six weeks' visit to Mr. A. E. Meservey of C. E. Durkee's hardware store.

Concord Starts for Chee Foo.

Washington, Aug. 26.—A cablegram received at the Navy department reported the departure to-day of the gunboat Concord from Chemulpo, Korea, for Che Foo, China. Her arrival at Che Foo will increase the number of United States vessels there to three, the other two being the flagship Baltimore and the gunboat Yorktown. Acting Secretary McAdoo, of the Navy department, informed a United Press reporter that he had given no orders regarding the movements of ships on the Asiatic station, where everything was now in the hands of Rear Admiral Carpenter.

For that reason Mr. McAdoo was unable to confirm a suspicion that this government intended to make a demonstration against China on account of the missionary troubles.

To Avoid Boiler Explosions.

Denver, Aug. 26.—A committee from the City Council met with some engineers and boiler experts to-day to consider the proper action to be taken in framing an ordinance to protect the city from boiler explosions. One representative of a boiler works stated that the Council should permit only water tube safety boilers to be set up within the fire limits. He declared that neither boiler inspection nor the licensing of engineers is sufficient to protect the public. This is likely to bring on a fight between the makers of water tube and fire tube boilers.

Fought When Church Was Over.

McCook, Neb., Aug. 26.—William Tate and Archibald Cathart, prominent young men, met after church services yesterday to settle an old quarrel with knives. Tate used his knife with fatal effect, Cathart dying this evening. His slayer has eluded arrest.

Drowned While Serenading.

Norfolk, Neb., Aug. 26.—A. J. Gabler of Waco, Tex., took Mrs. Ada Vennum, a friend, rowing on the Elkhorn river last evening. While they were serenading the people on the banks, the boat upset and both were drowned. Their bodies were covered to-day.

Mail Service for Marvine.

Washington, Aug. 26.—In response to a numerously signed petition and to letters from Senator Teller and others, the post-office authorities have ordered the establishment of a regular mail service from New Castle, Colo., for the supply of Marvine during the months of July, August, September and October of each year, beginning next year, and the postmasters of New Castle and Marvine have been authorized to advertise for bids. It was found impractical to get the service started this year.

Two Fire Alarms Yesterday.

A locomotive whistle, followed by an alarm from box 49, called the department to the Midland trestle yesterday morning about 1 o'clock. A fire had been burning slowly on the Midland trestle for some time, making very little blaze, but eating steadily into the ties and timbers. About 20 feet of 16 was burned and trains were laid out for a few hours until the bridge gang put it in shape again.

At a little before 2 in the afternoon, some smoke from a neighboring chimney blew into an upper room of Miss Price's boarding house on North Cascade avenue. An alarm was sent in, but there was no fire at all.

New Antlers Orchestra.

The Antlers is to have a new orchestra, which will put it at the head of Colorado hotels in this line. It will consist of Mr. Diedrich, violin; Mr. Rawley, cornet; Mr. Kuhls, claironet; Gus Rose, 'cello soloist, and Mr. Casser, pianist.

Of the members, Mr. Diedrich, Mr. Rawley and Mr. Casser are too well and favorably known to need any further introduction. Mr. Rose, the 'cellolst, has been a favorite around New York for some years, and has played with Seidl. Mr. Kuhler comes very highly recommended in his line of work.

Concerts by the new orchestra will begin on Monday, and will continue through the winter.

Mr. H. S. Poley attended the bull fight on Saturday, and secured some very good photographs of all the interesting parts. His pictures show the tormenting of the bull, the placing of the banderillos, the fatal stroke with the sword, and the death of the bull. Those who did not see the fight can get an idea of what it was like by consulting these photographs.

CHAPEL DEDICATED.

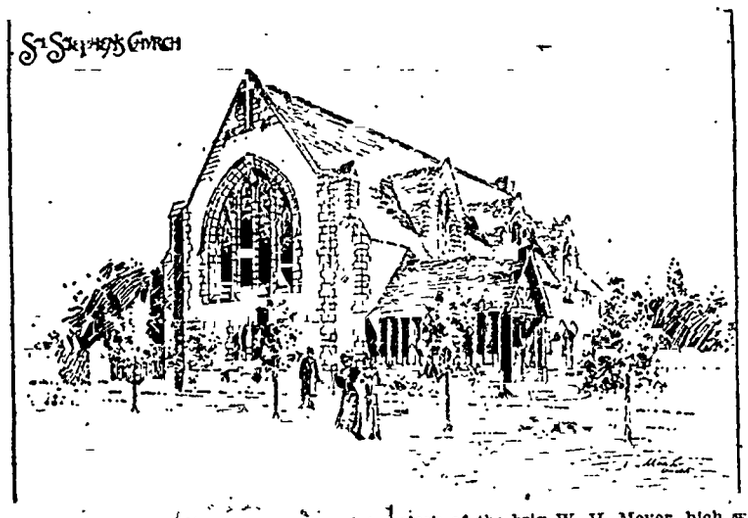

THE NEW HOUSE OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

A Building Designed as an Important Wing of a Larger Future Structure—The Dedication Services on Sunday Largely Attended—A Memorial Window.

The dedication services of St. Stephen's chapel were held Sunday morning. This was not the formal consecration, for an Episcopal house of worship cannot be consecrated so long as any debt remains upon it.

The church was more than filled and people were turned away. Bishop Spalding read the prayer of dedication, and he was followed by Dr. Solly, chairman of the building committee of the church.

His report was interesting, and showed the unfailing devotion with which the members of the congregation had worked toward the building of this, their church home, through all the hard time and depression. The building had cost about $15,000, and of this sum all but $600 had been provided. The heating and ventilating plant, which will be a very complete provision for pure and warm air, will cost $2,500 more, and this amount still remains to be raised. Addresses were also made by the rector, Rev. Philip Washburn; Rev. Mr. Hartley of Manitou, Bishop Spalding and Dr. McKim of Washington, congratulating the congregation on the self-sacrifice and devotion that had produced so splendid a result. Holy communion was celebrated by the Bishop, assisted by the other clergymen.

In the afternoon was a baptismal service, in which Mr. Washburn's little child received the rites of the church. This was followed by evening prayer.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and rubber plants, and flowers. The music was furnished by a volunteer choir under the direction of Prof. G. D. James, made up of Mrs. Tracy, Miss Holly, Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Rogers; Messrs. Blatchford, Rorer, Knight and Crosby. Miss Du Pre played a beautiful violin offertory. The offering, for the building fund, amounted to over $160.

The Building.

St. Stephen's chapel stands on the rear of the large lot at the corner of Tejon and Monument streets, with a large space toward Tejon left vacant for future extensions. It is a beautiful and striking building of gray Castle Rock lava, with a vestibule in half timber and pebble cast. The building at present contains an auditorium in front, with an open timber roof construction. The rear end is in stories, with a guild room down stairs, and a large Sunday school room above.

The heating plant is to be installed this fall. It will force the heated air, by means of a fan, to openings high on the walls, so that the impure air will be forced out through openings in the floor.

The building is so planned that the greater part of it can be re-arranged internally into two stories and used as chapel, Sunday school rooms and parish house, when the larger church will occupy the remainder of the lot, as is evidenced to some extent by the double range of windows, but a churchly appearance is retained in the present building.

The style of the architecture is based on that type of Gothic prevailing in Britain in the thirteenth century, which depends for effect mainly on good proportion, severity and purity of form.

While there are no buttresses outside so characteristic of Gothic, a pleasing relief has been obtained to the walls in the interior by placing red brick tiers at each roof truss.

A color scheme of an unusual kind has been introduced consisting of a high terra-cotta red dado with light olive green walls over and the roof stained neutral green with some points of the trusses gilded.

The crowning feature of the interior of the church, the feature that catches the eye on first entering, and which holds it by its power and beauty, is the memorial window to Miss Eleanor B. Ripley, which is in the sanctuary, over the altar. It is a reproduction of the face of the Christ child, from Hoffman's picture of Christ in the temple. It has been most beautifully reproduced in glass by the Tiffany Glass company of New York, and adds greatly to the beauty and to the sacred atmosphere of the interior of the church. It is the focus of interest of the whole decorative scheme.

The church has been erected from the designs of T. MacLaren, architect, who won at the Royal Academy of London, a few years ago, the gold medal and traveling studentship of $1000 for architectural design, also the Pugin Medal and Studentship of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

History of the Parish.

St. Stephen's parish was organized in April, 1893. The first services were held in the Antlers Pavilion. In May, 1893, the Congregational church on Bijou street was rented, and fitted up for use. This building was occupied until the present month. Services were conducted by occasional supplies until June, 1893, when Rev. A. B. Nichols came to take charge of the parish. He remained until August only, finding the altitude unfavorable to his health. Rev. Philip Washburn took charge of the parish October 1, 1893, as minister-in-charge for six months, and at the end of that time he was elected rector. The first vestry elected was as follows: Dr. S. E. Solly, O. S. Johnson, wardens; W. C. Bispham, M. C. Davidge, H. C. Hall, H. G. Lunt, W. H. Sanford, J. G. Shields, H. LeB. Wills, vestrymen. Mr. Sanford retired on account of non-residence, and T. C. Partish was elected in his place. At the Easter meeting, 1895, Judge Lunt declined a re-election on account of other duties, and G. R. Buckman was chosen to fill the vacancy.

Who Sent the Infernal Machine?

London, Aug. 26.—In pursuance of a dispatch from Paris, the Scotland Yard detectives have made a search of several foreign clubs known to be haunts of anarchists in the Soho district of the city in the endeavor to find some clew to the sender of the infernal machine to Baron De Rothschild Saturday afternoon. No arrests were made. A dispatch from Paris to a news agency says that a man whose name is not given was arrested at Vic-Sur-Cere, near the town of Cantal in the province of that name, today, the local postmistress having alleged that he posted at her office a letter addressed in handwriting similar to the superscription on the parcel containing the explosive which wounded Baron Rothschild's secretary.

The Story of a Wreck.

Port Townsend, Aug. 26.—The bark Sonoma returning this morning from Port Clarence brought H. R. Wood, freight clerk of the brig W. H. Meyer, hich was wrecked at Port Clarence on July 16. The vessel dragged her anchors in a heavy storm, going ashore. The report that seven lives were lost is incorrect, all of the crew and the passengers escaped safely, nothing being lost but the sailors' baggage. The crew are now aboard the United States steamer Bear and will come down in her. The wreck entails a loss of $50,000, and includes all the government's supplies destined for the whalers at Cape Prince of Wales. The Port Clarence cargo had been discharged before the vessel was wrecked.

T. W. Meyer was commander by Capt. Hanson, who lost the barkentine John Wooster off the Cape last year in the same gale that wrecked the Montserrat, Keweenaw and Ivanhoe.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Aug. 26.—Money on call has been easy at 1 per cent.; last loan at 1, and closed offered at 1. Prime mercantile paper 4@4½ per cent. Bar silver 66¼. Mexican dollars 53¼. Sterling exchange is weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4 85½@4 85¾ for 60 days and $4 89¼@4 89½ for demand. Posted rates $4 89@4 90. Commercial bills $4.87½@4.88. Government bonds firm; State bonds steady; railroad bonds active and strong. Silver at the board was dull.

The railway stocks cut away from the industrials to-day and a number of the former sold at the best figures for a long time past. Reports from Philadelphia that the coal trade was on the mend strengthened the coalers, Jersey Central rising 1¾ to 107½; Lackawanna 1¼ to 165½; Delaware and Hudson 1, to 139¾ on light trading. In the grangers, St. Paul advanced 1¾ to 76½; Northwestern 1½ to 105½; Rock Island 1¼ to 83; Omaha 1½ to 44; Burlington and Quincy ⅝ to 91⅜, and Illinois Central 1 to 102.

Atchison was the feature among the lower priced issues and sold up to 19. The industrials were feverish. Sugar was heavy and pressed for sale, breaking from 109½ to 106⅝@107¾. The selling was due to further reductions in the price of refined and to a flood of rumors to the effect that the insiders were willing to see lower figures for the certificates. St. Louis firms sold Tobacco. The stock dropped 2¾ to 95¾, and rallied to 96¾@96¾. Chicago Gas was firm and rose to 63¾@63¾. It was again rumored that the Benedict party is taking the stock.

Speculation closed strong for the railways and irregular for the industrials. Net changes in the railways show gains of ¼ to 1¾ per cent., and losses of ¼ to 2¾ per cent. in the industrials. Total sales were 262,487 shares, including 63,800 Sugar, 45,000 St. Paul, 19,000 Atchison and 19,400 Tobacco.

Bonds were active and strong. Sales aggregated $2,453,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—To-day's session was another disappointment to the bulls in wheat. The market opened slumpy on heavy shipments from abroad and lower cables, but the Northwestern receipts being considerably underestimated tended to steady prices. There was also a fair local buying around 61¼, which was the "put" price. Liverpool cables were quiet with futures reported ½ pence lower. When buying against "puts" ceased, that being the only sustaining influence, the market fell of its own weight, but rallied on the announcement of the very large decrease in the visible supply and closed steady at about the opening prices.

The depressed tone of wheat caused an easy opening in corn, but the market quickly rallied and held steady on covering by shorts and on the large withdrawals from store. Trading was light. There was considerable selling of May by commission houses and the option was weak and lower. September held steady to firm on the improved tone of wheat and at the close was at the outside price.

COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE.

NUMBER 5396. COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., TUESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1895---SIXTEEN PAGES. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE FLOWER CARNIVAL.

Our Third Annual Midsummer Festival Was a Grand and Glorious Success.

25,000 PEOPLE VIEWED THE PROCESSION.

Two Battalions of the Regular Army From Fort Logan Lead the Long and Gorgeous Pageant.

TWO MILES OF GAILY DECORATED VEHICLES IN LINE.

The Weather was All Right and Everybody was Happy. A Full Description of All the Teams and Floats, With the Names of the Participants. The Bicycle Parade on Friday Evening a Gorgeous and Glittering Show. Names of all the Prize Winners. Movements of the Governor and Staff. The Soldiers' Stay. Social Gayeties.

A symphony in flowers.

A dream of fair women.

A magnificent moving panorama.

A gorgeous and glittering aggregation of all that is most beautiful.

Half a thousand troops in line, with martial music, waving banners, and all the pomp and circumstance of war.

All that imagination could suggest, or ingenuity contrive; all that lavish expenditure could collect, or artistic skill could fabricate. All this and more was the Flower carnival.

Everything conspired to make it a success.

The people came by the thousand; more than two thousand from Denver; nearly a thousand from Pueblo and points south; almost the whole population of Manitou, and all the people in Colorado Springs.

The grand stand was a new feature, and it will never be omitted in future. With its tier upon tier of seats, crowded with all the beauty and fashion of the place that was not in the parade itself; with its waving streamers, its boxes filled with fair women and brave men—for surely the governor of Colorado and his staff, and the General commanding the Department of Colorado and his staff, may properly lay claim to such a title; and with a military band discoursing martial music, it was a sight to be remembered.

Still more impressive was the mass of good-natured humanity that filled the street for blocks on either side. They had come there in festal array to see the show; and there saw it. They cheered for the troops as they passed by, and they clapped their hands for the beautiful displays, and they laughed at the London costermonger and at Coxey's army and the sham Governor Waite; and they had a good time generally, and they showed it. So did everybody else.

Colorado Springs is a modest and self-contained town, and seldom effervesces; but the Flower carnival is one time in the year when she turns herself loose and celebrates herself, and it is something to remember as long as you live.

All day long the people had been gathering. Morning trains from the north and south and east and west had been bringing in their loads of visitors. Rapid transit cars had been pouring in their crowds into the streets; and soon after noon all the houses in Colorado Springs began to send out their multitudes to join the throng. All were dressed in gala attire; all had some decoration of flowers or ribbons, to testify that this was a festal day. The humble sunflower was the favorite, but the sweet pea was a good second, and all the other flowers of garden and of field contributed of their beauty and their fragrance. There were wild grasses and cat-tails, and hop-vines and clematis, and sunflowers and bachelors' buttons, and dahlias and hollyhocks, and wild sage and carnations and kinnikinnick.

The weather was unusual—it always is on unusual occasions, and when a great number of visitors are in town; but it was not unpleasant. All day long the clouds were gathering, over behind the Peak, and the weather-wise bade the marshals make sure of getting their parade started promptly on time. But the clouds tempered the glare of the sun, and cooled the atmosphere, and the rain held off until all was over, and most of the people had reached their homes again.

At 1:30, the hour set for the vehicles to be ready, just one was in its place on Columbia street a pony trap full of little girls. Things did not look propitious for a prompt start. But soon the streets leading up-town were full of the gaily-decorated floats and carriages and horses, and by 2 o'clock, when the soldiers marched out of their camp to the inspiring strains of the band, and lined up on the avenue, most of the rigs were in position. The marshals were busy for half an hour in straightening things out, and getting everybody ready to take the right place in the line; and finally at 2:30, everything was ready, the band began to play, and those on the grand stand could see far up the avenue the big sunflower umbrellas of the police beginning to move their way, followed by the blue-coated boys of Uncle Sam, and then by the gorgeously caparisoned teams of the paraders.

The Line of March.

The parade was headed by a platoon of the policemen of the city, led by Marshal Dana and Captain Gathright. The men each carried a sunflower parasol, and had a broad sash of orange across the breast. The horses wore housings of orange and black.

Then came the Fort Logan band, with helmets and long horse hair plumes. In with the band was a platoon of campaigning buglers with their slouch hats, and dirty clothes. The full dress regulars came next. They looked as nice as militiamen but they had the regular soldier gait, that prevented any mistake. Following the "dudes" came what most of the people along the line of march called "the real soldiers." These were the men that came in and took the town at daybreak after a forced march from Palmer Lake. Their orders were to fall in just as they marched into town, "dirt and all," to quote the commanding officer's words. But they had had a hard night of it, and at the last moment they were allowed to unsling knapsacks and leave them behind. But this detracted only a little from their soldier-like appearance. These were the troops that Frederic Remington draws, the men that put down the Indians and quell the mobs. The men that we wanted so awful bad here a year ago, and that we couldn't get. Very soldier-like they looked in their slouch hats, and dusty clothes and browned cheeks, and brown leggings, and they were cheered all along the line of march. They carried their rifles at an easy angle, and marched with a long swinging easy step, without any fancy trimmings. Their business is to get there, and to be in fighting shape when they arrive, and, like a great many other things, they were good to look upon because they were so little ornamental, and so thoroughly useful.

Troop A looked soldier-like enough too. They were on horseback, as becomes cavalry on parade, and they had the county cannon with them, that cannon whose patriotic instincts so far have been gratified only in salutes on the national holidays.

The cavalcade of cowboys is always interesting; and though this year it was not so ornate as it has been, it was more genuine. Mr. DuRee headed it in a flaming red shirt, and with a revolver conspicuously displayed.

Then began the aesthetic feast of form and color, a string of carriages over a mile long. Every shade that grows in flowers was represented and almost every flower that grows in the region. At the last end came a very clever burlesque of Coxey's army, which was gotten together by Robert Epperson of Colorado City. He was gotten up as Governor Waite and he had made a study of "His Wheels" that enabled him to mimic his actions very exactly. He was followed by a motley crowd of boys, with picturesque tatters, and faces painted. The rear was closed by a wheel barrow, labeled "grub cart." It recalled a year ago, quite forcibly, but the joke would not have been funny then.

The programme was followed out exactly. And it proved to be both a wise and a successful plan. The people that had put so much pains upon their rigs were not debarred from seeing other people's displays, and the people along the line of march had a chance to see many of the best rigs more than once.

The Battle of Flowers.

The battle of flowers was a great success, and it is an established feature of the parade from now on. Nearly every one of the paraders had a supply of bouquets, and the air was kept full of them. The space between the two stands was carpeted with beauty, in spite of the efforts of numerous small boys, who secured many of the bouquets to be used over and over. Mr. Rope had no flowers to throw, but he had vegetables, including bouquets of fragrant onions, that added variety to the battle. He hit one lady in the nose with a turnip, and if it had been a cabbage, the result might have been serious.

After the battle the troops, that had been strung along the street above the stands, so that the men might have a chance to watch the fun, fell into line and marched up the avenue to camp. The weather began to look threatening, and the crowd quickly dispersed.

The Crowds.

The parade was witnessed by at least 25,000 people. They lined both sides of Cascade avenue, from the north end of the College reservation to the Midland tracks, and in some places they extended back in a solid mass to the houses. The crowd was thickest from the grand stands down to The Antlers, and in the space at the foot of Pike's Peak avenue the people were crowded in as thick as they could stand. It was a good-natured crowd, barring a few women who did not care if there was no procession at all, so long as they could not be in the front ranks. There were no accidents reported.

Of the people that watched the parade at least 2,500 came from Denver. All the roads ran special trains, and the regular trains were filled to the doors as well. Pueblo sent up about 400, and about the same number came down from camp. The rest of the people came from the foot of Pike's Peak, Colorado City and Manitou.

The Decorations.

A great many of the handsome residences on Cascade avenue were gaily decorated yesterday with flags, flowers and bunting and added much to the brilliant appearance of the city.

The residence of Mr. Wm. F. Andersoh at 112 North Cascade, was festooned with black and yellow bunting—the colors of Sunflower day—and attracted much favorable attention. Miss Rose Wagner's residence, and that of Mr. Chas. S. Sprague on College place, were tastefully draped with the national colors.

Colorado College showed its patriotism and enterprise by decorating Palmer and Montgomery halls and President Slocum's residence. The national colors were harmoniously blended with black and gold, which stood, in this case for Colorado College as well as for Sunflower day, and the whole effect was very pleasing.

Mrs. E. C. Goddard's handsome home was profusely bedecked with flags and red, white and blue bunting, and across the avenue the residence of Mr. Thos. H. Edsall was also brilliant in the national colors. Professor Stricby's house was decorated with flowers and bunting, and also the cottage occupied by Mr. Bengle in the block below, and the residence of Mr. Henry C. Lowe.

The decorations were especially noticeable on the four corners of Cascade avenue where it is intersected by St. Vrain street. On one corner the Bemis residence, occupied this summer by Miss Maynard, was a blaze of crimson, laid on by tasteful hands, and the result was very attractive. On the opposite corner the residence of Mrs. A. M. Thayer was decorated with red, white and blue. Strings of sunflowers were festooned from the trees on the lawn in front of Judge Lunt's home, and the effect was very unique and pleasing. Mrs. A. F. Carpenter's residence, on the other corner, was strikingly trimmed with immense artificial sunflowers and streamers of bunting. Dr. Adams's residence, adjoining, was also noticeable for the handsome decorations, and for sunflowers of a decidedly supernatural size which occupied conspicuous positions over the dormer windows projecting from the roof. Major McAllister's house was decorated with flowers and bunting.

Further on down the avenue were many more residences that were tastefully and beautifully decorated. Prominent among them were those of Mrs. De Coursey, Miss Price, Miss Johnson, Mr. Francis B. Hill, Mr. F. E. Rouse and Dr. B. F. Anderson.

The guests of the Alta Vista were busy all the morning superintending the decoration of that popular hostelry. The result was very effective. Long streamers of bunting were festooned over the front of the building, and an immense artificial sunflower looked complacently down on the brilliant scene below from its station over the main entrance of the hotel.

The Antlers hotel was elaborately decorated in pink and maroon. The columns of the eastern piazza were wound with clematis and trimmed with pink hollyhocks. The hotel presented a gala appearance and the tasteful decorations elicited a great deal of admiration.

The Decorations Down Town.

The business houses were not very generally decorated, as the parade on Cascade avenue attracted the crowds away from the business part of town. But there were some displays that were extremely attractive. Prominent among these was the window display of the Colorado Springs Furniture company. One window space had been made to represent a bed chamber. In the center of the room stood a small stand completely covered with cut flowers and on it a vase of gladioli. On the bed was probably the most beautiful coverlet that ever graced a bedstead. It was a solid mass of dahlias, sweet peas, phlox, carnations, bachelor's buttons, nasturtiums, candytuft and mallax. The slumber roll at the head of the bed was also covered with vari-colored flowers, on which was made the inscription, "C. S. F. Co." all in flowers. On the floor was a mat of natural sunflowers. The cultivated flowers were all from the garden of Mr. H. I. Bennett of this city. The window must be seen to be appreciated.

Another beautiful window display was that of Hayward, the confectioner. The windows were trimmed with clematis and wild columbines. The combination was exquisite.

The windows of Baker & Co.'s drug store were tastefully trimmed with sunflower colors. All the morning a beautiful little girl, Miss Minnie Stewart, was seated in the north window. She was attired in a gown of white and yellow and wove wreaths of sunflowers. The sight was a very pretty one.

The show windows of the Shields-Morley Grocery Co. were the most handsomely decorated on Cascade avenue. They were solidly banked with scrub oak foliage, the dark, glossy green of which was enlivened by the brilliant yellow of wild sunflowers. The combination was very effective, and attracted a great deal of favorable comment on account of the novelty of the idea as well as the good taste shown in the arrangement. The credit of the idea as well as the execution of the decorations is due to Mr. E. W. Blatchford, an employee of the firm.

One of the handsomest decorations was in the front window and in front of Mr. F. F. Horn's store, where Charley Chan had a beautiful effect in Chinese lanterns. These were especially effective in the evening.

The windows of The Democrat office, No. 9 South Cascade, were handsomely decorated with smilax, arbutus, sunflowers and growing plants, clustered about a majestic Rocky mountain eagle. Glittering amid these was a fine collection of crystalized minerals from Crystal Peak.

Mr. S. T. Seddon and H. P. Schwamb had a finely decorated window on North Tejon street.

The windows of the Wilbur Dry Goods company were very attractive. The foreground was filled with artificial sunflowers of various sizes, and the background was of bunting of many bright colors. Giddings Bros.' window's were also gaily dressed. The whole front of N. O. Johnson's dry goods house was festooned with bunting. Among the other business houses that were appropriately decorated with floral designs or bunting designs, were: Ashby's, the Consolidated book store, C. E. Evans & Co., Hallett & Baker, The Antlers livery, the May Clothing Co., the Postoffice Book Store, the Green Grocery Co., I. M. Low, Hibbard & Co., Holbrook & Perking, Thos. Hughes's grocery store, A. S. Blake, the Bee Hive, and the Gazette building.

The Individual Displays.

One of the most striking exhibits in the parade was the Cripple Creek stage. The expense of this was borne by Mr. W. S. Stratton, and it was a great success. One of the big Concord coaches that used to tip over regularly on the roads to camp, before the days of railroads, was brought down Wednesday night, and a force of painters worked on it all that night. Every bit of it was gilded, and an immense nugget was put on the top. On each wheel were two picks and a shovel, made of dahlias, and arranged in triangles. On the boot was a pick and shovel crossed on a background of sunflowers. On each door was a shield of dahlias. The coach was drawn by six spirited black horses. The harness was gilded as well as the coach, and the whole effect was dazzlingly rich. On the top of the coach rode a number of the members of the Mining Exchange. They did not look much as they do in the pit. Their transformation was so complete as to even deceive a Denver newspaper man, who had them down in his notebook as real miners. Those who rode were A. A. Carnduff, G. H. Webster, W. M. Williamson, J. O. Conner and Spencer Penrose. Mr. Carnduff attracted the most attention. He had on a shirt open down the front, a revolver on one hip, and a flask opposite, muddy boots, and he waved a Winchester at the admiring crowd. Mr. Webster had a similar rig, and wore on his breast one of the little red badges that marched up to camp a year ago.

Another very brilliant display was the one made through the enterprise of the colored employees of the El Paso club. It was entitled the "Queen of Flowers." On a large flat float was a raised dais, on which sat the queen enthroned. She was surrounded by her maids of honor, and then by guards, young men and boys in costumes of brilliant red, Turkish style, and carrying spears. The body of the float was of orange, and there was a canopy of hop vines over the queen. The four horses were each led by a Moorish attendant, and were covered with orange housings. The whole effect was one of barbaric splendor. The following are the enterprising ones who got up the display: Miss Lou Riley, Miss Olive Green, Miss Lizzie Curtis, Miss Ada Curtis, Miss Carrie Edwards, Miss Daisy Huling, the queen; Miss Laura Carter, Mrs. Maud Jenkins, Mrs. Emma Jones, Mr. Ed Scott, decorator; Mr. Ed Carter, manager; Mr. Jean Carter, Mr. Conrad Reed, Mr. Wm. Byrd, Mr. Joe Robb, Mr. Wm. Marshall, Mr. Homer Bell, Mr. Roy Wise, Mr. Frank Carter, Mr. Thos. Carter, Mr. Chas. Carter, Mr. A. J. Jenkins, Mr. Dave Jones and Mr. Wm. Grey.

China Jim eclipsed his efforts of last year. He combined China and Japan in his float, as he does in his shop. In the front end was a Japanese interior, in which Miss Florence Williams and Miss Nina Bishop sat and pretended to play on little snake-skin covered banjos. In the hind end was a Chinese interior, and here in splendid silk robes, looking very dignified, were Jim and his cousin, Soon Gule of Omaha. An immense Japanese simbrella overshadowed the whole, and smaller parasols, fans and porcelains, completed an oriental picture.

The Antlers four-horse brake showed a pleasing combination of materials. The color scheme was of green and yellow. The green was in two shades, of pine and sage. On this were sunflowers, and yellow crookneck squashes. The effect was pleasing and the rig was unique. The passengers were Misses Brooke, Osborne, Scott, Cook, Gard, Murphy and Messrs. Daniels and Barnett.

Miss Johnstone of 221 North Cascade avenue sent in a float entitled the "Midsummer Night's Dream." It was artistic and interesting. All the characters of the play were represented. Puck was impersonated by Allen Lee; Bottom, Leonard Lee; Peach Blossom, Florence Craig; Mustard-Seed, Ida Tribe; Queen Titiana, Helen Fisher; Moth, Olive Fisher; Cobweb, Julia Rummell. Cupid, Wallace Bishoff; William Ware, in fancy costume, held the lines. The float was supported by swans and trimmed with flowers.

Supt. R. B. Agnew and General Agent W. W. Wood of the Rock Island made an interesting display, of a small engine, built of sheet iron and wood, which was carried on a long truck, trimmed in sunflowers and golden rod. The engine was complete in every detail, and was on its own rails. The cab was manned by two boys and a real bell was kept ringing. The engineer was Master Herbert E. Hickey of Little Rock, Ark. The display was imported expressly for the occasion. It attracted more attention than any other feature.

Prominent among the interesting features of the parade was the appearance of Mr. Albert E. Rope. Mr. Rope represented a London costermonger, of the class that has been made famous by the songs of Albert Chevalier. There was the curious little cart, piled high with vegetables on which Mr. Rope was perched, in the quaint costume of the coster. The cart was drawn by a patient little donkey, and the picture was said by those who have been in London to be perfect in every detail.

The Iron Springs hotel of Manitou sent over a bus, which the guests trimmed yesterday morning on very short notice. It was in hop vines, with the hubs in pink tissue paper. The occupants were a merry crowd, and they had special souvenir cards printed to distribute to their friends. Their names were: Misses Lillian Manewal, Carrie Manewal, Sharp, McGrath, Crabb, Mrs. L. W. Levy, Mrs. R. Heidenheimer, Mrs. Myers, Messrs. McGrath, Sharp, W. M. Sharp, L. W. Levy, George Manewal, H. H. Levy.

The Cliff house, Manitou, has adopted lavender and green as its colors, and its float was in these colors. It was a gondola filled with pretty girls, and propelled, supposedly, by two young men in Venetian costumes of the same colors.

Messrs. Arthur and Stuart Stickney of St. Louis acted as gondoliers and Misses Anna Nichols of Manitou, Beatrice Young of Denver, Amy Opel of St. Louis, Elizabeth Tucker, Frankie Curtis and Daisy Kohn of Chicago, in white costumes garnitured with pale green and lavender ribbons and flowers, occupied the gondola. It was drawn by six black horses with pale green and lavender trappings, and postillions represented by Messrs. Taylor, Stickney, Kearns and Forbes.

Colorado College.

Colorado College was strictly in it. The float was an elaborately built-up affair. It was led by President Slocum, in a mortar-board cap, and Mr. Parsons representing the trustees. Both were mounted on black horses, and wore orange decorations. From each corner of the float rose a round pillar, and these were connected by arches, on which were inscribed the name of the college. In the float rode some of the graduates, in academic gowns and mortar boards, representing the erudition. Then there were football players and baseball players, in uniform, and pretty girls, representing the coeducational features of the college. A young man in a bicycle suit, riding a horse, brought up the rear. The float was gay with streamers. On the wheels were baseball bats and tennis rackets on backgrounds of orange and black. The occupants kept the college yell moving.

The Harvard Cart.

The Harvard cart was a double-seated trap, drawn by a pair of black ponies. It was decorated with crimson hollyhocks, which, with the red bunting and ribbons covering the harness, made a brilliant showing. Miss Lunt and Miss Gregg, the young ladies who sat in the trap, were dressed in white, and wore bunches of deep-red roses. With them were Messrs. A. Z. Reed, '97, and J. E. Gregg, '97. They wore plenty of crimson ribbons on their black clothes.

The Yale Trap.

Yale was represented by a four-wheel trap, seats back to back, drawn by two white horses. The body of the cart was a mass of white hollyhocks, and on either side in letters of blue cornflowers was the word "Yale." The wheels were solidly covered with blue bunting, the rims and hubs being trimmed with white hollyhocks, and four Y's of white hollyhocks radiating from the hub of each wheel. The guards, dashboard and lantern brackets were trimmed with blue cornflowers. The harness and whip were wound with blue ribbons, as also were all exposed parts of the trap. Yale flags and Yale blue ribbons and bunting were profusely and effectively used. The occupants of the trap were: Miss Meacham, Miss Regina Lunt, Mr. Frederic Morley, whip, and Mr. Worrall Wilson. The ladies were gowned in white, with dark blue trimmings, and the men wore white and blue.

Mr. Pickands, accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, drove in a spider phaeton, whose decorations were very tasteful. The glossy black of the vehicle was only partly covered with garlands of crimson carnations, and glossy green kinnickinnick.

Miss Howbert and Miss Seldomridge had a cart in pink and green. The pink was all in sweet peas, and hop vines furnished the green. The harness was in green. Like most of the winning designs, this was so arranged that the flowers set off the beauty of the vehicle instead of concealing it. The two young ladies were dressed in harmony with their surroundings.

Miss Nina Crosby drove a cart, dressed in sweet peas and clematis vines. The two were combined especially well on the wheels. She was accompanied by Miss Nicholson.

Mrs. Armit and the Countess Pourtales rode in a phaeton, with a high rolling dash, that was covered three inches deep in sweet peas. The prevailing color was purple; and Mr. Smit in purple satin rode as postillion, preceded by an outrider. This was one of the most lavish displays made.

Mr. H. V. Wandell had a display altogether of wild flowers. It was made in the form of a big basket, in which the young ladies appeared a bouquet of beauty. Mr. Wandell drove, and had with him Miss Wandell, Miss Tucker and Miss Etta Tucker. The wheels had a beautiful star design.

Mr. J. F. Spratton of Pueblo appeared with a rig made up in lavender. Asters furnished the color, supplemented by satin. He was accompanied by Miss Jessie Dickinson and Miss Emma Crandall of Omaha, Miss Maud Anderson of Pueblo.

Mrs. T. C. Parrish drove a spike team of five white horses, trimmed in orange. Masters Truxton Morris, Willie Bunnaby and Albert Gardner were the equerries, and drove their steeds with orange satin ribbons. The reins were of orange satin ribbons. The carriage was a mass of orange, in dahlias and marigolds. The harness was elaborately trimmed with flowers also. In the carriage, in white gowns, rode Mrs. Parrish, Miss Holly and Misses Gladys Crosby, Violet Gardner and Miss Parrish.

Miss Wheeler of Manitou had a rig trimmed with magenta mustard flowers and asparagus. It contained Miss Wheeler, Miss Marion Wheeler, Mr. D. Rupp and Mr. R. I. Kennedy.

Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Newberry had a striking example of what taste will do with very simple materials. Their victoria was almost wholly in the subdued tint of mountain sage, and yet it was one of the most artistic entries, and secured a prize.

Mr. J. W. Proudfit is a Princeton man, and he dont care who knows it. He had a dogcart of orange and black, in great masses of colors, marigold and dahlias and clematis as a background. Mrs. Chauncey was with him, and was dressed in keeping. Mr. Proudfit was not classified as a college display, but went in as a tandem, and secured the first prize in that class.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Sprague had a walkover for the first in the four-wheelers. Their rig was covered with California pampas grass plumes, with tall tassels on the collars of the horses. The harness was in white satin. Mrs. Sprague carried a white parasol, trimmed in the beautiful plumes. The effect of the whole was unique and beautiful.

Miss Marie De Coursey and Miss Ripley were in white, with only enough green to make the white flowers show up. Their decorations were largely sweet alyssum and hollyhocks, though nearly every white flower was represented. Master Bartow Hall, in a white livery, was their footman.

Miss Bessie Taylor and Mrs. H. J. Sisty had a hooded buggy trimmed into a sea shell. They used sweet peas largely.

Miss Berry and Miss Blair had a phaeton trimmed with a small weed of a peculiar gray green, that grows on the plains.

A surrey drawn by two white horses, and trimmed with golden rod, the national flower, made a very pretty effect. It contained Miss Angela Burns, Miss Edith Batterson, and Miss Eugenia Cogger.

Mrs. L. Ullman and son of New York appeared in a rig trimmed in green tissue paper with red and green artificial roses. A May-pole in green and pink, with long streamers to the corners of the buggy, rose in the center.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ornisbury, Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Bowers rode in a canopy top buckboard, trimmed with streamers of sunflowers and foliage.

The Morley-Otis trap was a two-seated, two-horse, Mr. Morley driving, Mrs. Otis by his side, with Mrs. Morley and Mr. Otis on the back seat. The horses and running gear of the trap were covered with pale green. The body and wheels were covered solidly with two shades of pink hollyhocks and some hop vine. The ladies and gentlemen were dressed in white, wearing the shades of pink to match the hollyhock.

A brilliant display in white and orange was made by Miss Ford of Denver, Miss Hill of Chicago, Mr. L. R. Bridsham and Mr. Crippen of Denver. The body of the carriage was covered with white, and decorated with sunflowers and yellow ribbons. The gentlemen wore white duck suits, and the ladies were in white and gold. A canopy surmounted the whole, and this, too, was trimmed in white and gold. The whole effect was very dainty.

A rig that bore close inspection better than a great many, and looked equally well at a distance, was the one driven by Miss Scott of Philadelphia. Why it did not get a prize is a question that the judges must settle with their own consciences. The wheels were trimmed with sweet peas, in heart designs, and the same plan was followed out on the body of the vehicle. The ladies carried heart shaped fans trimmed with the fragrant peas. In the center rose a tall Maypole, trimmed in pink and white. Besides the peas, mountain sage and dahlias were very tastefully used. The ladies were dressed to match. They were, besides Miss Scott, Mrs. Monteith, Mrs. Douglas and Miss Annie Gates.

Miss Grace Carr drove a prize winning rig, in green and white. She had a mail phaeton, with footman in white. The shafts, wheels and harness were intertwined in hop vines, and white artificial chrysanthemums were intermingled. She was accompanied by Mr. J. M. White, in dress and name to suit the color scheme.

Four little girls in white, Inez, Garvey, Beulah Whaite, Hazel Whaite and Ada Russ drove a four-wheeler, trimmed with sunflowers and kinnickinnick. They looked very pretty indeed.

Wheaton Riddle and Harold Sprague represented the Turks this year. They had a phaeton luxuriously draped with brilliant colored rugs, and lolled back in rainbow-tinted turkish costumes. Brilliant crescents were on the wheels, and Master Frank Riddle rode the horse, who was gaily caparisoned.

Miss Cox, Miss Rowell and Master Rowell were in a green and white buckboard. This effect was one of the most common in the parade, and this was a very good example. Hops and kinnickinnick were the materials used. The harness was in white.

In the buckboard the fox-terrior Lord Rosebery, from the famous Belmont kennels, sat erect, with a collarette of green Dresden ribbon with which his white coat corresponded perfectly with the decorations of the vehicle.

A laughable exhibit was that made by Messrs. W. H. Reynolds and Clint Draper. They had their faces blacked, and Mr. Reynolds had on a white duck dress with beautiful bangs. Mr. Draper had on a most brilliant blazer. They rode in a little cart with two burros tandem, and were extremely loving.

Mrs. H. C. Lowe had two children in a Spanish pack on either side of a large horse. The happy couple were little Irving Lowe and Miss Julia Clark. They balanced each other nicely. Their chairs were trimmed in pink and purple zinnias and dahlias. It was cute, and handsome.

Mr. E. R. March was one of the horsemen. He had made himself up after Scheyer's celebrated picture of an Arabian, and rode a large gray steed, dressed all in white, and carrying a sunflower shield, and a long spear. His face was stained to the right tint and he made one of the most effective special designs of the day.

Professor Schulenberg and Mrs. Charles T. Walker each rode and drove two dark brown horses, with white and gold trimmings and sunflowers.

Professor Collins drove three fine grays tandem. His saddle and fixings were all in white, with scarlet poppies and clematis. Mr. F. H. Metz drove two with trimmings of artificial hydrangeas.

Howard, Clarence and Russ Burtis made a good Brownie exhibit. One of them was a clown, with sunflowers painted on his chubby cheeks. He rode a horse that wore bloomers of pink and yellow. His brothers were a policeman and a dude respectively. They looked just as though they had stepped out of one of Palmer Cox's sketches.

Miss Florence Bacon, in pink and white, was a charming little equestrienne. She was accompanied by Raynor Gardner in brown and yellow. Both were on ponies.

The two sons of Mrs. A. F. Carpenter and young Master Ted Robinson made a display that was a good companion to Mr. Rope's London coster cart. They were French peasants. Two of them drove a burro, attached to a cart of vegetables. The cart and wheels were trimmed with vegetables, the spokes of the wheels outlined in ears of sweet corn, opened so as to show the pearly kernels within. Another rode on a burro, with a panier on either side, brimming with flowers. All three were in peasant dress down to the smallest detail.

Jerry Sprague was the crackajack brownie of the procession. He was driving "Toby" in his cart, with immense sunflowers on the wheels. He wore a suit of yellow, and he bore the signs of a square meal under his jacket, though it was probably a meal of feathers. He had a peaked hat, and played his part to perfection. There ought to have been a brownie prize for the little fellows who took so much pains, to compete for. But Jerry earned the envy of all the small boys of his age, anyhow.

Merton and Guy Brewster, boys of about 12 years, had their pony cart nicely trimmed with red and white dahlias and hollyhocks. The flowers covered the shafts and went up on the harness.

Mrs. Poinier drove a team of Shetlands. Her colors were yellow and green, and she had yellow artificial roses on the rig and harness.

Miss Sophie Williamson, Miss Mary Williamson, Miss Cathie Williamson and Miss Sophie Tutt were the only ones in the parade that used the brilliant cattileas to any extent. They combined them effectively with sunflowers and other wild flowers to secure a prize.

Mrs. H. T. O'Brien and the Misses McGovney had a brilliant turnout, drawn by Shetlands. The wheels were trimmed with oak leaves and pink artificial roses. The rig was covered with the artificial flowers, and the two ladies carried parasols similarly trimmed.

Colwell Martin, Mayzie Martin, Hattie Martin and Alfred Heinz drove a pony trap, gaily ornamented with sunflowers and foliage.

The Grand Stand.

The grand stand presented a brilliant appearance. It was handsomely decorated with bunting and was surmounted by scores of bright-colored pennants which floated in the breeze. The Governor and his party occupied the box of honor, and during the wait for the parade the Colorado Springs band dispensed enlivening music. Every seat was taken, and the occupants were enthusiastic in the extreme, cheering their favorites and friends as they passed in review, or pelt-

The Surgeon's Miracle.

"Poor Abe Dodge"

That's what they called him, though he wasn't any poorer than other folk, not so poor as some. How could he be poor, workin as he did and steady as he was? Worth a whole grist of such hair as his brother, Ephe Dodge, and yet they never called Ephe poor whatever worse name they might call him. When Ephe was off at a show in the village, Abe was follerin the plow, drivin a straight furrow, though you wouldn't have thought it to see the way his nose pointed. In winter, when Ephe was takin the girls to singin school or spellin bee or some other fool lines out till after 9 o'clock at night, like as not Abe was hangin over the fire, holdin a book so the light would shine first on one page and then on the other, and he turnin his head as he turned the book, and readin first with one eye and then with the other.

There, the murder's out! Abe couldn't read with both eyes at once. If Abe looked straight ahead he couldn't see the furrow nor anything else, for that matter. His best friend couldn't say but what Abe Dodge was the cross eyedest cuss that ever was. Why, if you wanted to see Abe you'd stand in front of him, but if you wanted Abe to see you, you'd got to stand behind him or pretty near it. Homely? Well, if you mean downright "humbly," that's what he was. When one eye was square the other was out of sight, all except the white of it. Humbly ain't no name for it. The girls used to say he had to wake up in the night to rest his face, it was so humbly. In school you'd ought to have seen him look down at his copybook. He had to bent his head clear over and cock up his chin till it pointed out of the winder and down the road. You'd really ought to have seen him; you'd have died. Head of the class, too, right along, just as neer to the head as Ephe was to the foot, and that's sayin a good deal. But to see him at his desk! He looked for all the world like a week old chicken, peekin at a tumblebug! And him a grown man, too, for he stood to school winter so long as there was anything more the teacher could teach him. You see, there wasn't anything to draw him away; no girl wouldn't look at him lucky, too, seein the way he looked.

Well, one term there was a new teacher come regular high up girl, down from Chicago. As bad luck would have it, Abe wasn't at school the first week hadn't got through his fall work. So she got to know all the scholars, and they was awful tickled with her everybody always was that knowed her. The first day she come in and saw Abe at his desk, she thought he was squintin for fun, and she upped and laughed right out. Some of the scholars laughed, too, at first, but most of 'em, to do 'em justice, was a leetle took back, young as they was, and cruel by nature. (Young folks is most usually always cruel don't seem to know no better.)

She thought he was squinting for fun.

Well, right in the middle of the hush, Abe gathered up his books and upped and walked outdoors, lookin right ahead of him, and consequently seein the handsome young teacher unbeknown to her.

She was the worst cut up you ever did see, but what could she do or say? Go and tell him she thought he was makin up a face for fun? The girls do say that come noon spell, when she found out about it, she cried just fairly cried. Then she tried to be awful nice to Abe's ornery brother Ephe, and Ephe he was tickled most to death, but that didn't do Abe any good. Ephe was just ornery enough to take care that Abe shouldn't get any comfort out of it. They do say she sent messages to Abe, and Ephe never delivered them, or else twisted 'em so as to make things worse and worse. Mebbe so, mebbe not. Ephe was ornery enough for it.

Course the schoolma'am she was boardin round, and pretty soon it come time to go to old man Dodge's, and she went, but no Abe could she ever see. He kept away, and as to meals, he never set by, but took a bite off by himself when he could get a chance. (Course his mother favored him, bein he was so cussed unlucky.) Then when the folks was all to bed he'd come in and poke up the fire and peek into his book, but first one side and then the other, same as ever.

Now what does schoolma'am do but come down one night when she thought he was abed and asleep and catch him unawares. Abe knowed it was her quick as he heard the rustle of her dress, but there wasn't no help for it, so he just turned his head away and covered his cross eyes with his hands, and she pitched in. What she said I don't know, but Abe he never said a word, only told her he didn't blame her, not a mite; he knew she couldn't help it no more than he could. Then she asked him to come back to school, and he answered to please excuse him. After a bit she asked him if he wouldn't come to oblige her, and he said he calculated he was obligin her more by stayin away.

Well, come to that she didn't know what to say or do, so, womanlike, she upped and cried, and then she said he hurt her feelin's. And the upshot of it was he said he'd come, and they shook hands on it.

Well, Abe kept his word and took up schoolin as if nothin had happened, and such schoolin as there was that winter! I don't believe any regular academy had more learnin and teachin that winter than what that district school did. Seemed as if all the scholars had turned over a new leaf. Even wild, ornery, no account Ephe Dodge couldn't help but get ahead some.

Well, you've heard of Squire Caton, of course; Judge Caton, they call him, since he got to be judge of the supreme court and chief justice at that. Well, he had a farm down there not far from Fox river, and when he was there he was just a plain farmer like the rest of us, though up in Chicago he was a high up lawyer, leader of the bar. Now it so happened that a young doctor named Brainard Daniel Brainard had just come to Chicago and was startin in, and Squire Caton was helpin him, gave him desk room in his office and made him known to the folks. Kinzies and Butterfields and Ogdens and Hamiltons and Arnolds and all of those folks about all there was in Chicago in those days. Brainard had been to Paris. Paris, France, not Paris, Ills., you understand and knew all the doctorin there was to know then. Well, come spring Squire Caton had Doc Brainard down to visit him, and they shot ducks and geese and prairie chickens and some wild turkeys and deer, too; game was just swarmin in at that time. All the while Caton was doin what law business there was to do, and Brainard thought he ought to be doin some doctorin to keep his hand in, so he asked Caton if there wasn't any cases he could take up surgery cases especially he hankered after, seein he had more carvin tools than you could shake a stick at. He asked him particularly if there wasn't anybody he could treat for "strabismus." The squire hadn't heard of anybody dyin of that complaint, but when the doctor explained that strabismus was French for cross eyes he naturally thought of poor Abe Dodge, and the young doctor was right up on his ear. He smelled the battle afar off, and 'most before you could say Jack Robinson the squire and the doctor were on horseback and down to the Dodge farm, tool chest and all.

Well, it so happened that nobody was at home but Abe and Ephe, and it didn't take but few words before Abe was ready to set right down then and there and let anybody do anything he was a mind to with his misfortunate eyes. No, he wouldn't wait till the old folks come home; he didn't want to ask no advice; he wasn't afraid of pain nor of what anybody could do to his eyes couldn't be made any worse than they were, whatever you did to 'em. Take 'em out and boil 'em and put 'em back if you had a mind to, only go to work. He knew he was of age, and he guessed he was master of his own eyes such as they were.

Well, there wasn't nothin else to do but go ahead. The doctor opened up his killin tools and tried to keep Abe from seein them, but Abe he just come right over and pocked at 'em, handled 'em and called 'em "splendid" and so they were, barrin havin them used on your own flesh and blood and bones.

Then they got some cloths and a basin, and one thing and another, and set Abe right down in a chair. (No such thing as chloroform in those days, you'll remember.) And Squire Caton was to hold up the instrument that spread the eyelid wide open while Ephe was to hold Abe's head steady. First touch of the lancet and forth spirted blood and what do you think? That ornery Ephe keeled and fell flat on the floor behind the chair.

"Squire," said Brainard, "step around and hold his head."

"I can hold my own head," says Abe, as steady as you please. But Squire Caton he straddled over Ephe and held his head between his arms, and the two handles of the eye spreader with his hands.

It was all over in half a minute, and then Abe he leaned forward and shook the blood off his eyelashes and looked straight out of that eye for the first time since he was born. And the first words he said were:

"Thank the Lord! She's mine!"

About that time Ephe he crawled outdoors, sick as a dog, and Abe spoke up, says he:

"Now for the other eye, doctor."

"Oh," says the doctor, "we'd better take another day for that."

"All right," says Abe; "if your hands are tired of cuttin, you can make another job of it. My face ain't tired of bein cut, I can tell you."

"Well, if you're game, I am."

So, if you'll believe me, they just set to work and operated on the other eye, Abe holdin his own head, as he said he would, and the squire holdin the spreader. And when it was all done the doctor was for puttin a bandage on to keep things quiet till the wounds all healed up, but Abe just begged for one sight of himself, and he stood up and walked over to the clock and looked in the glass, and says he:

"So that's the way I look, is it? Shouldn't have known my own face never saw it before. How long must I keep the bandage on, doctor?"

"Oh, if the eyes ain't very sore when you wake up in the mornin, you can take it off, if you'll be careful."

"Wake up! Do you s'pose I can sleep when such a blessin has fallen on me? I'll lay still, but if I forget it or you for one minute this night, I'll be so ashamed of myself that it'll wake me right up."

Then the doctor bound up his eyes and the poor boy said "Thank God!" two or three times, and they could see the tears runnin down his cheeks from under the cloth. Lord! It was just as pitiful as a broken winged bird!

How about the girl? Well, it was all right for Abe and all wrong for Ephe all wrong for Ephe! But that's all past and gone past and gone. Folks come for miles and miles to see cross eyed Abe with his eyes as straight as a loon's leg. Dr. Brainard was a great man forever after in those parts. Everywhere else, too, by what I heard.

When the doctor and the squire come to go, Abe spoke up, blindfolded as he was, and says he:

"Doc, how much do you charge a feller for savin his life makin a man out of a poor wreck doin what he never thought could be done but by dyin and goin to kingdom come?"

"Oh," says Doc Brainard, says he, "that ain't what we look at as pay practice. You didn't call me in; I come of myself, as though it was what we call a clinic. If all goes well, and if you happen to have a barrel of apples to spare, you just send them up to Squire Caton's house in Chicago, and I'll call over and help eat 'em."

What did Abe say to that? Why, sir, he never said a word, but they do say the tears started out again, out from under the bandage and down his cheeks. But then Abe he had a 5-year-old pet mare he'd raised from a colt pretty as a picture, kind as a kitten and fast as split lightnin and next time doc come down Abe he just slipped out to the barn and brought the mare round and hitched her to the gate post, and when doc come to be goin, says Abe:

"Don't forget your nag, doctor; she's hitched at the gate."

Well, sir, even then Abe had the hardest kind of a time to get Doc Brainard to take that mare, and when he did ride off, leadin her, it wasn't half an hour before back she came, lickety split. Doc said she broke away from him and put for home, but I always suspected he didn't have no use for a hoss he couldn't sell nor hire out and couldn't afford to keep in the village that was what Chicago was then. But come along toward fall Abe he took her right up to town, and then the doctor's practice had growed so much that he was pretty glad to have her, and Abe was glad to have him have her, seein all that had come to him through havin eyes like other folks—that's the schoolma'am, I mean.

How did the schoolma'am take it? Well, it was this way: After the cuttin Abe didn't show up for a few days, till the inflammation got down and he'd had some practice handlin his eyes, so to speak. He just kept himself to himself, enjoyin himself. He'd go around doin the chores, singin so you could hear him a mile. He was always great on singin, Abe was, though ashamed to go to singin school with the rest. Then when the poor boy began to feel like other folks, he went right over to where schoolma'am happened to be boardin round, and walked right up to her and took her by both hands, and looked her straight in the face, and said:

"Do you know me?"

Well, she kind of smiled and blushed, and then the corners of her mouth pulled down and she pulled one hand away, and if you believe me that was the third time that girl cried that season to my certain knowledge and all for nothin either time.

What did she say? Why, she just said she'd have to begin all over again to get acquainted with Abe. But Ephe's nose was out of joint, and Ephe knowed it as well as anybody, Ephe did. It was Abe's eyes to Ephe's nose.

Married? Oh, yes, of course, and lived on the farm as long as the old folks lived, and afterward, too, Ephe stayin right along, like the fool he always had been. That feller never did have as much sense as a last year's bird's nest.

Alive yet? Abe? Well, no. Might have been if it hadn't been for Shiloh. When the war broke out Abe thought he'd ought to go, old as he was, so he went into the Sixth. Maybe you've seen a book written about the captain of Company K of the Sixth. It was Company K he went into—him and Ephe. And he was killed at Shiloh, just as it always seems to happen. He got killed and his worthless brother come home. Folks thought Ephe would have liked to marry the widow; but, Lord! she never had no such an idea! Such bait as he was compared to his brother! She never chirked up, to speak of, and now she's dead, too, and Ephe he just toddles round, takin care of the children kind of a he dry nurse; that's about all he ever was good for anyhow.

My name? Oh, my name's Ephraim Ephe they call me for short Ephe Dodge. Abe was my brother.

COLORADO SPRINGS MINING EXCHANGE

Has Now Been in Existence Over Twelve Months and is Entirely Successful.

NEARLY $2,500,000 WORTH OF BUSINESS DONE,

Which Makes no Account of Several Hundred Thousand Unlisted Stocks Traded In.

SALES IN LISTED STOCKS OVER 18,000,000 SHARES

The Exchange Started to Promote the Mining Stock Business and to Protect the Investor. It is Governed by the Most Prominent Business Men of the City Who are in the Majority on All Committees. A Perfect System of Recording Which is Open to the Trader.

The Colorado Springs Mining Stock association was organized by prominent business men of the city for the purpose of protecting investors in mining stocks. Prior to the opening of the Exchange it was almost impossible to get at the true value of stocks or even know what commissions were being charged. Consequently, if a broker desired, he could take advantage of his clients both in price and commission.

The Colorado Springs Mining Stock Exchange is under the control of a governing committee, composed of Exchange and associate members. The associate members are all prominent business men (not brokers) who are interested in having an exchange that will protect investors and be a credit to the city, and thereby bring more business, and to that end have given their time and attention to it. The associate members form a majority on the governing committee. No by-law can be made that will tend to increase the business of any individual broker at the expense of the Exchange.

S[illegible] of the Officers.

The president, Mr. R. J. Rolles, a large mine owner, was a former member of the New York Stock Exchange, and his experience has been very valuable to the Exchange. The associate members on the governing committee are J. A. Hayes, cashier of the First National bank; W. H. [illegible], president of the El Paso bank; George H. Parsons of the Colorado Springs Co.; Ward Hunt, one of the owners of the Moon mine at Cripple Creek, and T. C. Parrish, mine and mill owner.

The secretary of the Exchange keeps a complete record of all transactions including the prices of buying and selling brokers and in no case can investors be charged more than the regular commission for buying and selling, no matter what limit is given the broker. The records are open to all purchasers of stock through the Exchange. The management is anxious to prevent fraudulent mining schemes being floated and has exposed and prevented many such from doing business in this vicinity. Eastern investors who send their orders to brokers who are members of the Exchange have a guarantee that they could not otherwise get, as brokers who violate the rules are liable to expulsion at any time.

Seats Valued at $1000.

There are thirty-one members who paid originally for their seats $150. All brokers were given an opportunity to join subject to the approval of a membership committee, but it was afterwards [illegible] and that all who did not join and settle for the seat prior to a certain date should be excluded. The result was that when the books were closed thirty-one members had enrolled and settled. Since the opening seats have been sold as high as $[illegible] and [illegible] recent transfers have been made at large profits to the original owners.

[illegible]

The total sales in listed stocks for the twelve months the Exchange has been in existence from September [illegible], 1894, to August [illegible], 1895, are [illegible] shares, representing a cash value of $[illegible], or about $[illegible] per month.

[illegible]

The business during the past month, however, has far exceeded that of any previous month as the sales for August up to and including August 24 are [illegible] shares, representing a cash value of $[illegible]. In addition to the listed stocks the brokers are permitted to deal in unlisted stocks beginning on May [illegible] and up to date the sales amounted to [illegible] shares, making the grand total of sales over [illegible] millions. At present the Exchange is known all over the world [illegible] and the secretary is in constant correspondence with investors from all parts of Europe.

Next month the Exchange will have been in business a full year and it is probable that at that time a [illegible] house or quarters will be [illegible].

FLOWER CARNIVAL

[illegible] the scene for those in the [illegible] was no less brilliant than the pageant which the [illegible] saw on the grand [illegible]. The [illegible] after the [illegible] and the general effect was one of beauty, color and radiance.

The Judges.

While the parade was in progress the [illegible] were busily engaged [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] among themselves. The judges were as follows:

[illegible]

When the carriages were countermarching, the awards were made, a blue pennant for first, a red for second and a yellow for third. The pennants were of silk, and were themselves trophies to be preserved, apart from the prizes they represented.

Award of P[illegible]

It was a severe task for the poor judges. Nearly every rig had some sort of peculiar excellences that made it entitled to special recognition. Each display too had partisans, and if it drove past the grand stand and did not carry off a pennant, there were injured feelings both in the rig, and in the crowd. The judges seemed to prefer the quieter, more artistic displays, to the more brilliant ones, and this subjected them to severe criticisms from people with an eye to color. But on the whole, the decisions suited the majority, and were consistent and impartial.

In the saddle horse competition two first prizes were given, because there was a prize left over from the fire department in which there were no entries.

Mrs. Charles T. Walker got the first prize for tandem saddle team. Mr. Charles W. Collins took the first for tandem saddle team, and Mr. E. R. March had the second prize for saddle-horses.

In the cowboy class, Mr. M. Anderson, a colored man, got the first prize and Miss Maude Stevens the second.

Colorado College float carried off the first honors amid great cheering. This was the prize for the float, and not for the college display. That went to Harvard. China Jim got the second prize, and the float "Queen of Flowers," designed by the colored employees of the El Paso club, got third, and also the first prize for the best design by a colored person.

The Cripple Creek coach easily carried off the first prize for sixes.

The Antlers was given the first for fours.

For a spike team, Mr. O. P. Townsend got the first prize.

Mr. J. W. Proudfit drove the winning tandem. This was in Princeton college colors but the prize was not for that class.

Two horse four wheelers—Miss Ca[illegible], first; Mrs. J. J. Hagerman, second; Messrs. Otis and Morley, third.

The Pope ranch load of hay got the first for out of town floats.

The one horse four wheel prize was carried off by Mr. and Mrs. Sprague. This in the grand stand. Mr. J. O. [illegible] won the second.

Mr. I. F. Spratton of Pueblo was given the out of town prize in this class.

Miss DeCoursey and Miss Ripley carried off the honors in the carts. Miss Howbert was second and Miss Crosby third.

The Misses Williamson were awarded the first for ponies, and the Carpenter boys got second place.

An extra prize was presented to Mr. Schulenberg for the skillful manner in which he handled the tandem during the parade.

A special prize for originality of design was given Mr. Rope.

The Rock Island locomotive was given the [illegible] prize at large, Mr. Rope's cart another first, the Cripple Creek coach a first in this class. Mrs. Hagerman secured the wild flower design prize, Mrs. T. C. Parrish for cultivated flowers, Miss Grace Carr for artificial flowers and Harvard for college colors. The special prize for colored people went to the "Queen of Flowers" float.

A ROUND OF GAIETY.

A D[illegible] Parade by the [illegible]

[illegible] the Governor and Staff

On Friday, the soldiers were the great attraction throughout the day. Guard mount at 9 o'clock in the morning called out about a thousand people, and beside the interesting military ceremonies they listened to a very good band concert.

The largest crowd was at the dress parade at 4 o'clock. There were at least 2500 people, and perhaps 3000 [illegible] the lower half of the reservation. A few sentries were posted to keep them back and they did not have [illegible] the day before. All the troops, both battalions, were out and made a good display. The drill was a fine sight and was enthusiastically applauded. The men in campaign dress-continue to be the favorites, and some of the onlookers insist that they are the only real soldiers, and the better dressed ones are only a sort of [illegible]. Mat Hood was the reviewing officer. Perhaps the most pleasing feature of the [illegible] was the [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

At the El Paso Club.

Gov. McIntire and his staff were entertained at luncheon at the El Paso club at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Those who sat at table with the governor were Dr. Solly, C. E. Noble, T. C. Parrish, [illegible] G. R. Buck[illegible] [illegible] and R. J. Rolles. At 4 o'clock [illegible] [illegible]

Reed Brothers,

DEALERS IN REAL ESTATE, MINES

And Mining Stocks

We do a general real estate business and have a full and complete list of properties ranging from cheap lots and cottages to the finest residences and business blocks. The great output of Cripple Creek mines, most of which are owned in this city, will cause all real estate to increase in value within the next two years. The advance has already begun. We offer some splendid bargains in centrally located business properties.

We buy and sell all the mining stocks traded in on this market, having representatives on both Exchanges. We solicit the orders of non-residents, whose business will receive our most careful attention. We wire quotations on stocks free to our customers.

We sell mines, having some good things to offer. We have customers for a good producing Cripple Creek mine worth not more than $250,000 and for a group of mines worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000. We have first-class Eastern and European connections and can offer mines in the best markets in the world.

We loan money on real estate at lowest current rates, and buy and sell notes and mortgages.

We advise speculators and investors to put money in Cripple Creek mines and mining stocks. Cripple Creek is going to be the greatest producer of wealth that has been known in the United States since California in 1849. Already hundreds of fortunes have been made, and the camp is only in its infancy.

BOARD OF TRADE AND MINING EXCHANGE.

The Young Stock Broker Institution Which Has Always Had a Brilliant Record.

17,000,000 SALES IN A LITTLE OVER 3 MONTHS.

Its History Has Been Nothing But Success from the Opening Until Now. Business Increasing by Leaps and Bounds.

An Original Seat on the Board Cost $40. They Have Since Sold as High as $300. The List of Members Includes 100 Names of Prominent Brokers and Mining Men. Aims to Secure Business and Permit Trading at Rates Low Enough to Secure "Quick Returns."

The record made by this institution, from the day of its founding to the present, testifies its success.

Locally at first, and then reaching out for foreign fields, it has done as much for the legitimate advancement of Cripple Creek properties and stocks as any other body acting as an outlet for the mining business.

Its object is and always will be, the correct guidance for dealing in reputable stocks, and its iron-clad rates of commissions are sufficiently low to permit speculation and "quick turns."

Beyond Expectations.

Business has been stimulated beyond the most sanguine expectations, by the inauguration of the Board of Trade, and its weekly and monthly records of sales have been enormous.

A little comparison here may be interesting: The Board opened for business May 16, 1895. The total shares sold that day were 72,300, representing a value of $1,451.25. Wednesday, August 21, about three months after, the total sales for the day were 570,400 representing a value of $27,667.50. Again, the original value of a seat was $40 and quite recently they have sold as high as $200 and $300.

The accompanying table of stocks and sales handled for the past three months, is of interest. Healthy competition stimulates trade and it will always be the purpose of the Board of Trade to keep its transactions out of petty channels. The watch-word of the institution is "Honesty of purpose, and the heralding and advancement of Cripple Creek, so long as that camp is a worthy one."

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Easterners Should Be Careful How, When and Where They Invest.

The following from the Cripple Creek Times needs no comment beyond the statement that it is thoroughly endorsed by The Gazette:

"Cripple Creek is booming. Booming as never did a camp before. In all parts of the civilized world people are talking Cripple Creek and next year even greater excitement than prevails this year may be expected. In fact no gold camp in the world ever offered such promise to the investor as Cripple Creek does to-day. This being the case it is but natural that schemers and unscrupulous agents will and are at this time taking advantage the boom to bleed the public. Stock jobbing schemes of all kinds are being arranged and agents are going about the east selling stock.

"It has repeatedly been stated and development thus far has fully borne out the statement that any property within the established belt, where management is honest and title is good, is a fair speculation and in many instances investment insures absolute certainty of big returns. Because property is not now producing is no sound argument that it will not be next year or even ten days from now if it is honestly prospected or developed; hence it becomes a difficult matter for a newspaper to say, with justice to all parties concerned, what is good and what is bad stock. Of course there is a great deal that we know is good and some that we think is bad, but if the property is within the recognized district, or even close to what is now termed the mineral belt it has a prospective value and is a gamble for speculators.

"But it is not these properties with which it is desirable to deal at the present time. A little later it may be possible to safely point out to investors that which is good and that which is bad. All we can do at this time is to warn prospective investors to be very careful in convincing themselves that they are getting into companies where the title is good and that the property is located as represented.

"Every man in the Cripple Creek district who has any interest in the future of the camp, would feel only kindly disposed to have the press of the State and of the country in general to insist that prospective investors use every precaution against the swindling schemer who takes advantage of the greatness of the district to foist upon the public some worthless stock scheme. This paper will expose any corporation or company that starts out to "skin" the public, using the camp as a basis and it calls upon property owners and miners in general to help it in protecting investors. Legitimate stock speculation is all right and by the purchase of stock many a poor man or woman is enabled to realize handsomely on a small investment where, were it not for stock companies, they would not be enabled to become interested in mining at all. This matter is of much greater importance than many might suppose at first glance, as every time a person invests in a "wild-cat" scheme some man with an honest proposition is injured.

"Eastern investors should buy stock of no man, no matter what his representation, unless that man can furnish written endorsements from some financial institution or business house of established reputation and standing. No man, no matter how poor, if he be honest, need go about the country peddling stock or property of any kind, without carrying credentials from his home. Again, no stock is so good that it should be bought without first being investigated. The person who is in too big a hurry to make a deal, as a rule, should arouse suspicion. The public should be warned and then if they do not heed the warning victims need no sympathy."

Real Author of Christian Endeavor.

A Brooklyn newspaper says that Edward Eggleston originated the Christian Endeavor society in his popular story, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," which he wrote in 1872 in a small house in Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn. It is in this fiction, also that may be found "The Church of the Good Licks." In 1877, when Mr. Eggleston became the pastor of the Lee Avenue Congregational church now the Lee Avenue theater he organized for the young people a Society of Christian Endeavor, in imitation of the one in his book. The weekly meetings in the church drew together such a company of bright young men and women as this town never witnessed in similar gatherings before or since. All the professions were represented, and the object was chiefly social culture. It was from the success of this small company in making one evening in the week agreeable and profitable that the great organization has grown.

Our Pensioners.

Every civilized country on the globe contains persons who served in the civil war and now draw pensions from the United States government. Of all foreign countries Canada has the greatest number of our pensioners, there being no less than 1,763 persons resident in that country who draw pensions for service in the civil war.

Some of the republics south of us are said to order a good deal of railroad iron from the United States. If these states would buy more railroad iron and fewer guns, they would get on much more comfortably. St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

An Old Time Novel.

A pretty girl
With wavy curl,
An evening party somewhat late,
A homeward walk,
A loving talk,
A lingering tableau at the gate.
A moonlight night,
A hand squeezed tight,
A little reference to papa,
A little kiss,
A little bliss,
A consultation with mamma.
A little church,
"For bad or worse
You take this maid your wife to be?"
A trembling yes,
A loving press,
A little wife to live with me.

Ah, this dolce far niente, with its leisure hours a-plenty,
When the mercury is rising in the glass,
All life's torrid griefs forgetting in the oscillating netting
Of the hammock as it sweeps the waving grass!

How we generously pity those who slummer in the city
While we quaff the breezes from the hill or bay!
Oh, this dolce far niente! But, alas, it costs you twenty Anticipated His Readers.

"My hero dies in the middle of my last story," said the young author.

"That's a grave mistake," replied the editor. "He should not die before the reader does. I've heard of three men who actually finished your book before they gave in." Atlanta Constitution.

Who Did It.

His eyes had a dull, unintelligent stare.
He staggered and turned from the desk in a daze.
Bewilderingly through his disordered hair
His fingers he ran, while he uttered such phrase
As only a tottering mind would invent.
Was he drunk? Had he rashly and recklessly tried
Some knockout concoction, with deadly intent?
Oh, no! He'd been reading a Traveler's Guide.

Miss May Duffin was the winner in a voting contest inaugurated by a Chicago newspaper for the most popular public school teacher in that city, the prize being a free trip to Alaska and return.

Mrs. Cleveland's great fondness for flowers is well known, and she has an especial fancy for growing flowering plants, but is enthusiastic over all flowers, from the most modest wild flower to the conservatory bred rose and orchid.

Mrs. Kate Chase says that before the days of telephones her father used to go to the window of his committee room in the senate wing of the capitol and wave a handkerchief to her as a signal that he was not coming home to dinner.

Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, a temperance enthusiast of Boston, is making a unique collection. She is gathering pens. All the pens which have been used by state governors in signing temperance education laws are sought for this collection.

Mrs. Cahill of Arlington, Or., recently rode a big raft down the Columbia river for a hundred miles or more, steering it through the Priest and Umatilla rapids, waters in which many a raft managed by expert loggers has gone to pieces. She is the first woman to take the perilous trip.

Mrs. James R. McKee, the daughter of ex-President Harrison, is much interested in the new patriotic organization, the Children of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Daniel Lothrop is president. One of her ideas is to get the members to memorize and sing correctly America's national hymn.

Kate Field says that while she was in England she was asked in good faith whether the language taught in the public schools of the United States was English or American. "'Oh, American,' I replied," says Miss Field. "'English is a dead language. It is only learned by university men who go in for classics.'"

THE JEWEL CASKET.

The new jewel boxes are of lustrous white, with borders of pierced work in silver gilt.

Egyptian sphinx wings with a scarabaeus in the center have appeared as silver garter clasps.

A new sleeve button of white enamel delicately rimmed with gold has in the center a gold yacht under full sail. It is as pretty as a picture.

A silver heart in the center of a ribbon bow has been christened the "Trilby" fan holder. A long hook depending from the heart secures the fan chain or ribbon.

Charming brooches have appeared in which the foundations are graceful arrangements of thin gold lines punctuated by diamonds of equal and reasonable size.

A curious combination of insignia was sphinx wings with a horseshoe astride the center, and in the center of the horseshoe a star with a diamond in its center. The rest of the ornament was in small pearls. Jewelers' Circular.

Before You Buy a Wheel

Come in and see what we have to offer. The line includes

Fowlers, Sterlings, Nationals, Czars, Unions, Crescents

AND OTHER MAKES, TOO.

YOU see, people get dissatisfied with their mounts, of other makes, as soon as they see our line, and so we are taking perfect, good-as-new wheels, cheap in part payment for some of our own. It is rough on the men who bought the others, but the deal with us pays nevertheless. We sell them cheap, too. We have to.

HAVE YOU A WHEEL,

an old favorite, a standby? Bring it in, we will fix it all up, put on a new coat of enamel, and bake it on just as smooth and hard as at any factory; replace worn parts, put on some and make it lots better than some new wheels. And all this costs mighty little. Our prices would surprise you.

Everything a Rider Wants.

And nothing he doesn't want. A good floor pump, for home use, saves backaches, for $1.50. Bicycle Suits. All the Sundries you ever heard of and some that are newer yet........

Big Profits ON Small Investments.

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

HOME OF A MODERN MAGAZINE.

The Cosmopolitan Is Housed Handsomely at Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

[Special Correspondence.]

IRVINGTON ON-THE HUDSON, Aug 19. There are many places of historic interest in this vicinity. Localities where heroic deeds were done in Revolutionary days are scattered about with lavish hand and often visited by patriotic pilgrims Not far from the station, which nestles under the hills on the Hudson's eastern bank, is Sunnyside, the home of Washington Irving, toward which the steps of thousands every year are turned in reverent memory of him who was among the first to show the world that an American could write a worthy book Both Sunnyside and the Revolutionary localities are well worth the attention of every patriotic American.

But Irvington now has another attraction, quite as interesting in its way as any of those mentioned, though thoroughly modern, and, in fact, rather more than up to date. This is the publishing house from which John Brisben Walker issues The Cosmopolitan Magazine Mr. Walker is a member of that group of new school publishers who believe it possible to make a high class monthly periodical that may be profitably retailed at the astonishingly low price of 10 cents a number. He is not the pioneer in this direction, although he is doing pioneer publishing work in other ways. Mr. Walker's plan is quite novel in America and has no parallel anywhere unless one is furnished by the English publishing house of the poet Morris. Before Mr. Walker bought The Cosmopolitan, its selling price had been 25 cents a number. For several years after he got it that rate was maintained. During that time the enterprise was apparently successful, but some two or three years ago he determined that to secure a really wide circulation, such as he craved, the price must be made so low that no one able to earn a living could rightly consider the magazine too costly for him to buy. Accordingly the retail price of The Cosmopolitan was reduced to 12½ cents. The American News company, through which all the magazines are circulated, declined to handle a magazine retailing at a less price than this, or Mr. Walker would have adopted the 10 cent rate at that time. In order, however, to shave the price to a "York shilling" even he found it necessary to radically change the plan of production. Instead of giving out the printing to one house, the engraving to another, the electrotyping to another and the binding to another, he must do all this work for himself Further, if he would save the heavy cartage and certain other expenses to which he was then subjected, he must remove the publication office from New York city.

He had already bought a fine old country seat upon the banks of the Hudson, at Irvington, and after mature consideration he decided to erect here a building under whose roof should be carried on the editorial work and all the operations of typesetting, engraving, printing, binding, etc., necessary to the production of the magazine Work was begun as soon as practicable, and the building has been pushed with vigor ever since. It has now been occupied for two or three months, and though its exterior walls are not yet finished it is in good shape inside, and the regular work of the establishment is methodically going forward. The building is three stories in height, is about 200 feet long, wide accordingly, is surrounded by classic colonnades and surmounted by three rounded domes. The walls are of brick, but when completed will be covered with a coat of portland cement and white sand, which will cause them to stand out in gleaming contrast to the green of the trees and the smooth shaven lawns in the midst of which it is set.

But notwithstanding the perfect taste displayed in the design of this building nothing whatever of the practical has been sacrificed. In every respect the printing office and the bindery are models of their sort. The pressroom is upon the ground floor, all of which, save a corner set apart for the engine room, is given up to the printing machines. These are ranged along either side of the really vast apartment and so disposed with reference to the windows that each press receives plenty of light and no pressman is without an abundance of good, fresh air. Whenever a large quantity of paper stock has to be stored, it is placed in the center of the room, where there is ample space, in such a way as never to obstruct the light. The bindery on the next floor is arranged in exactly similar fashion, and upon the top floor, where the library, business office and editorial and composing rooms are situated, there is a somewhat similar and thoroughly sensible arrangement.

It is upon this floor that Mr. Walker and his immediate lieutenants do their work Looking out in three directions, north, west and south, they can see the broad and majestic Hudson and the palisades of the western bank. From windows looking to the east exquisite beauties of woodland and sward, diversified with handsome villas and cozy cottages, are visible.

Below the rise of ground upon which stands this ideal printing house run the tracks of the chief Vanderbilt railroad, and from it sidings have been laid, on which cars containing paper and other material are run to a point just below the building. Whenever it is desired to unload a car that has brought supplies to The Cosmopolitan, connection between the car and the building is made by means of a chute, a steam winch and a tackle.

Mr. Walker has consulted the comfort and convenience of his employees quite as much as he has consulted economy in the production of his magazine His pressmen and bindery hands are free to occupy his broad green lawns during the midday lunch hour, and his editors and the clerks in his business department are privileged often to go out sailing in his own trim yacht, May, which generally lies at anchor in the Hudson a few rods offshore

The application of the title editor to Mr Walker is not misnomer, since nothing is printed in his periodical which he has not examined and approved though much that he never sees is rejected by lesser authorities I D MARSHALL.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

In Paris, gray, beige, white and black alpacas are everywhere worn.

Pretty outing suits of blue imperial serge have Eton jackets with tabbed fronts and large bishop sleeves.

Black alpaca and black mohair skirts are immensely popular this year, these elegantly cut and hung and lined in color matching that of the blouse bodice.

Flounces appear on many smartly made gowns brought from Europe, and it is said that when trimmed skirts again prevail flounces will provide the leading garniture.

The new dresden challies are of French manufacture, and they show many of the beautiful designs popular in dresden ribbons and silks and the small patterned chine satins of last winter.

On account of the widely prevailing fashion of wearing full elbow sleeves with dressy afternoon costumes, thousands of dozens of mousquetaire lengths in gloves have been sold this season

The new color combinations of the opalescent or chameleon silks are exceedingly artistic and beautiful. Many of these popular silks are combined with mohair veiling or soft wool crepon with charming results

Among the more serviceable of the summer costumes are those of silver colored mohair, the skirts full but absolutely plain. The short skirted coats are rounded in front At the back a very frilly appearance is given by means of flutes of the mohair well stiffened New York Post.
